How many of the engineering works of the nineteenth century will there be in existence in the year 6000 ? Very few, we fear, and still fewer those that will continue in that far-off ago to serve a useful purpose. Yet there is at least one great undertaking, conceived and excuted by an engineer, which during the space of 4000 years has never ceased its office, and on which the life of a fertile province absolutely depends to-day. We refer to the Bahr Joussuf -- the canal of Joseph-built, according to tradition, by the son of Jacob, and which constitutes not the least of the many blessings be conferred on Egypt during canal took its rise from the Nilest Asiut, and ran nearly parallel with it nearly 250 miles, creeping along under the western cliffs of the Nile Valley with many a bend and winding, until at length it gained an eminence, as compared with the river-bed, which enabled it to turn westward though a narrow pass and cuter a district which was otherwise shut off from the fertilizing floods on which all vegetation in Egypt depends.

Egypt depends.

The northern end stood seventeen feet above low Nile, while at the southern

THE KENINE CO. 54 Warren St., New York end it was at an equal elevation with the river. Through this cut ran a perennial stream which watered a province named the Fayoum, endowing it with fertil ty and supporting a large populat'on. In the time of the annual flood a great part of the canal was under water and then the river's current would rush in a more direct course into the pass, energing with it the rich silt which takes the place of manure and keeps the wall in a state of constant produc-Liveness.

The Hot-Bed Sush.

Those living in the close neighborhood of the city have some excuse that they have no need for hotsbeds to advance crops shead of the usual time, as everything is brought to their doors. But the farmer, and those not so accessible, or who have not the money to pay out daily for everything that may be in the market, had better make use of this old-fashioned help to the gardener-the hot-bed. There are very few vegetations that will stand days of travel and exposure, and be as 'a sty as these grown on one's own grounds or in one's own neighborhood. They answer a good purpose for the million, and to those who know no better, are satisfying ; but those who have the facilities to grow semething of their own, or who live away from the general markets, may, if they so elect, have something better,

In the South, the hot-bed time will be at hand; it will gradually travel North, and to be in time when it does come, those who have tot-beds should paint up and get ready. Those who propose to begin their use should be looking out for ways and means. The sash part is now very cheaply made by manufacturers; the box itself any handy man can make. The only other article wanted for a starter is the horse-manure for heat. A couple of sashes can be made to grow a large quantity of things, such as early cabbage, lettuce, caulibower, tomatoes, egg plant and peppers. Room should be left to propagate a few slips from the window plants for the flower garden in summer; and there should be a sowing of the choicer kinds of flower seeds for the same purpose.

Wise Words.

Every bee's honey is sweet. The house showery the owner, Anger at a feast betrays the boor. New truths are merely old ones with the cobwebs brushed off.

The gratitude of place-expectants is a lively sense of future favors. It is no comfort to be told we are free to follow the advice of others. Man is a noble arimal, splendid, in ashes and pompous in the grave.

Affletion may one day smile again; and till then, sit thee down to sorrow, Thelless we know what is in store for us, the more contented we will be. Walk the path of advice carefully for deception will be met at every stop.

If a man has the toothache, he cannot imagine how a man feels without it. Those who advocate the virtue of yielding are benefited by the process. To be popular a person must possess the talent of disguising has character. A dwarf sees father than a giant when he has the giant's shoulders to mount on. To express an opinion because some one else had previously expressed it, is like thanking a man for the priviledge of earning a living for him.

The reason some people are afraid that others will make tal use of their liber y, is because they want to monopolize their own, and enjoy besides, all they can deprive others of.

How to Work,

Do not lay out for yourself for any day, or week, or month, more than you can accomplish. Do what you suppose, or ascertain that it cannot be done, and dismiss it, and turn to the next best thing, finishing as you go. Take first in hand the things which should be Elensburg Fire Insurance Agency done, and let those which may be done come after.

There are two opposite precepts in the philosphy of common life which dispute General Insurance Agent, for precedence. One is, "don't put off till to-morrow what can be done today," and the other, "don't do to day what can be delayed till to-morrow." To these contradictories the same direction may be applied. Having decided on your day's work, if it is a part of a continuous occupation, fix as definitely as possible on a good place to stop. and having ceased work, cease worry.

Leave no loose ends, and your day's work will furnish you with a composing draught better than poppy or mandragora. Complete whatever can be completed, and mentally post your books.

Nothing is more common in society than a repetition of a conversation and the comments made by one's friend on another Nothing is more dishonest; nothing alas I more common than the repetition of the commentary, meant to be good natured, on an absent friend, made with all the sugar left out.

Sometimes the very change of an accent or a word may construe a perfectly innocent remark into an attack. This is bearing "false witness;" it is the unpardonable sin, for while such a person is keeping within the limits of truth, she is really conveying a lie. Such are the most dangerous slanderers, the sweet-voiced, smiling people, who carry a rattlesnake in their boscms.

a hidden dagger in their tongues. It is not easy to tell the unvarnished truth, as every lawyer will assure us. Those who are in the habit of taking evidence find what a shilly shally thing human observation is to start with, and again, what a treacherous is language ! The faculties vary. Then the mind of some good men and good women is absolutely without an intellectual perception of the truth. We have known some mer and women, excellent moral characters, who never told the truth in their lives. They do not know how. Therefore, the habit of making a statement favorably or prejudicial to character does with such people, depend on the charitable or malicious feeting of the moment.

We are innocent while we absorb scandal, while we sit silently and hear our friends abused? Should we not soften down the rumor, disbelieve half of it, give the unfortunate the benefit of a doubt ?

Would it not be the safest excess. therefore, to always say of everybody, behind their backs exactly what we would say to their faces.

"If you would with percision speak Five things observe with care, To whom you speak, of whom you speak And when and how, and where."

Distinguishled Old Maids.

Look at the list of old maids. Elizabeth of England, one of the most illustrious of modern sovereigns. Her rule over Great Britain comprised the most brilliant literary age of the English speaking people. Her political acumen was put to as severe tests as that of any other ruler the world ever saw. Maria Edgeworth was an old maid. It was this woman's writings that first suggested the thought of of writing similary to Sir Walter Scott, Her brain might well be called mother of the Waverly novels. Jane Porter lived and died an old maid. The children of her busy brain were 'Thaddeus of Warsaw'' and "The Scottish Chiefs," which have moved the hearts of millions with excitement and tears. Joanna Bailie,, poet and play writer, was "one of 'em." Florence Nightingale, most gracious lady, heroine of Inkermann and Balaklava hospitals, has, to the present, written "Miss" before her name. The man who should marry her might well crave to take the name if Nightingale. Sister Dora, the brave spirit of English pest houses, whose story is as a helpful evangel, was the bride of the world's sorrow only. And then, what names could the writer and the reader add of those whom the great world may not know, but we know, and thee little world of the village, the church, the family know and prize beyoud all worlds.

A Woman's Plan for Dinner.

A notable little housewife whom I once knew, and who never asks what she shall have for dinner, once told me her plan. She said : I can't trust my servant. I won't bother my husband. I won't bother my husband. I won't take the time to study it over every day. So I make out a list every two weeks of of fourteen breakfasts and dinners ahead. I try to avoid too frequent repetitions, and it isn't very hard to do that. I don't make out a regular bill of fare, cut just put down one one or two of the principal dishes and the des-

Then at the end of the two weeks I begin over again. I don't make just the same list over again, and I don't stick too my program too closely. I do my own buying, and I know pretty well what is new in the markets, and if I want to change the dinners I do it. And after the first list is made out it is easy enough to write out the

By doing my own buying I serve three purposes. I keep posted on the markets, I get exercise, and I save money. 1 never run a grocer's or a butcher's bill. If I have not enough money to buy what I want, I go without.

The Vanderbilt Tomb.

I saw Mr. Pinkerton, who tells me that every fifteen minutes each clock placed in the Vanderbilt tomb is visited by a Pinkerton detective, two of whom are constantly on guard. One of these detective patrols outside the tomb, while the other is locked in and sits behing the other bars with a loaded repeating rifle across his knee ready for constant use. It would be next to impossibles for any robber to get away with the remains of Willian H. Vanderbilt so long as the tomb is protected little colony of them established on Staten Island, very near the mausoleum. There is something appalling in the sight of a boy, and no one with the right sort of feeling look at one without

Boys are always getting into trouble, disgrace and danger. Pity usually ends with the boy's mother and grandmother; they feel for him, no matter what hab-

But, father, grandfather, aunts and uncles consider him a good-for-nothing young nuisance, who doesn't get half the whippings he deserves. When he falls into calamity or disgrace they are ready to exclaim : "I didn't expect anything else !" Poor little men, with all the great howling wilderness of life ahead and none to fight their way for them! Who cares that their growing bones and hearts pain them for lack of words of sympathy. They are called lazy when they are ill, and nobody but mother takes the trouble to inquire into their bad feelings.

Sometimes a terrible accident swoops down upon the boy. He is accidentally shot, or gets drowned, or in some other way meets his fate. Then it is revealed to those who never gave him a pleasant look or word that possibly they have been unkind. But years of unavailing sorrow and regret cannot undo the past. The pale face of the dead boy, who was driven like a dumb beast from place to place, will surely haunt the ones who have been his persecutors.

Take it home, you who have boys to whom no word of kind encouragement is ever given. Somwhere in the country boys are being brought home every day, all their little cares and troubles over few all time. Then comes the regret and heart break that never can be cured.

By this I do not wish to excuse the worthlessness and perversity of many boys, or to imply that there are no fathers with tender, affectionate hearts : but I desire to touch a few who never lean to the side of charity in their dealings with the boys.

The Sewing Machine.

There is hardly any piece of household machinery which is capable of causing so much vexation as the sewing machine. The ingenious and indispensable mechanism, like most other things, is docile and tractable when in the hands of one who understands it. Not long since a Philadelphian essayed to adjust his wife's sewing machine. In a short time he became exceedingly interested in his work ; then, by the usual and rational changes, he passed to agitation, alsgust and a towering rage, closing with a grand denouncement with an axe and a succession of vigorous strokes that instantly reduced the sewing machine. When any portion of the mechanism fails to respond correctly, it is usually from some very trifling cause, and the first endeavor should be to find out exactly what is the matter. To become a master in the art of repairing sewing machines, it is requisite to understand the principles upon which the stitch is formed and the work fed. Very little manual skill is really needed. The breaking of thread or needles and the skipping of stitches are due, nine times out of ten, to the loosening of some screw, allowing some part to become slightly displaced. If your machine breaks the thread, first examine the broken end to determine whether it is cut or torn. Then measure the end down from the takeup, and you will discover at what point in the revolution the trouble occurred. Turn the wheel slowly, and watch the thread pass around the shuttle at the point where the accident occurred. Many times a machine can be persuaded to return to good behavior by simply taking out the needle and sbuttle and giving it a little cleaning and oiling, without disturbing any part of the adjustment.

Tying on Ladles Shoes. "Talking about traing on ladies shoes," said a clerk in a prominent shoe store. "It isone of the most delicate and arduous that fall to the lot of a salesman. Why the most innocent remark may be construed into affront, and clerk find himself called to account. Have you ever noticed that a boot and shoe man does very little talking ?"

"Yes. Some years ago a clerk in a New Orleans shoe store lost his life for paying a lady a compliment about the sixe of her foot ?"

"Do you mean in selling goods ?"

"Are Detroit ladies as sensitive on the subject. ?" "It requires very nice discrimination to know when to pay a lady a compliment on the size of her foot. We have some ladies come here who possess remarkably beautiful feet, and it would be worth my place if I made any remark about them Then others—just as fastidious in all respects—will exas fastidious in all respects-will expect a little well-directed flattery; in fact, will challenge it by deprecating their feet. Then some ladies will not allow us to put their boots on while others will treat us exactly as if we were foot stools or books"

"Are ladies bard to please ?," "Well I should just say so. Their feet are so tender they want to wear a loose shoe, and the always buy a tight one. Then they always try them sitting down, and it is the hardest work to get them to stand up and steparound. Sometemes I am nearly distracted trying to get a good fit, and one that will not have to be returned. But ladies are more sensible now about their shoes than they used to be. They wear the common sense and low heels, and have more comfort,"
