New Ways to Utilize the Soil.

Farmers in this country are asking how they can diversify their crops and make valuable the soil that is hardly worth the interest, the taxes and the working. In England also this question is up for debate, and answers have for some time been coming in. One is raising fruit to preserve it for home and foreign consumption. One feature of life that is increasing is the extent to which food is prepared so that it needs ly a little manipulation for the table. In this way housekeeping has materially changed, and the process is going on in England even faster than in this country. For example, in Kent county 75,000 hands are employed in preparing for the market fruits in a great many ways. Where butter is dear preserved fruits are taking its place, not as a luxury, but as a common article of od, especially jam, which sells ic England considerably less than butter, and is deemed a nuturious article of food. There are many ways to put the soi! to use at once practicable and remunerative. Our farmers are too much inclined to stick to the beaten occasions. paths, without troubling themselves to ook for new ones, or hardly thinking how their farms can be made profitable in new ways. Large towns and cities have created the demand and supplied the means for buying many things not before sold in quantities. The intelligent farmer will see for himself how this state of things has sprung up right under his nose without his having noticed it. The soil, like the metals and other raw material, may be made useful, and even profitable, in ways that have been little or not at all employed .- Pittsburg Times.

Twenty-foot Snow Drifts.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 14.—Severe weather reported generally throughout the Northwest. A blizzard is reging at Beardsley Minn., the drifts being piled 20 feet high. A piercing north wind accompanied the storm. Trains and wagon traffic is at a standstill.

The first great storm of the season has struck Grand Rapids, extending all over the upper Mississippi region. At New Salem the very air was darkened by falling snow, and pedestrians could not see their hands before them. At Wabash 13 inches of snow has fallen. in steadily-increasing measure. It is useless to attempt to gloss over ciples of political economy." phenomenon is one which may well arrest the attention of the statesman and the publicist. It marks a radical change of attitude on the part of a large share of the population toward the functions of government. The jealous preservation of private affairs from the interference of the State that was long the badge of Anglo-Saxon freedom seems to have decayed. Government is no longer regarded as something imposed by the necessity of maintaining social and political order, but as a means for the furtherance of private interests.

The Socialistic idea of a paterna! government, regulating the occupations of its subjects and directing their lives, is advancing. From the extreme protectionist doctrines, involving governmental interference to adjust the relations of different interests, to create and to destroy industries as a matter of policy and not of caprice, the step is short to that socialism which merges the individual in the State not in politics alone, but in his entire existence. Purblind indeed is he who sees no contrast between this and the early days of the Republic and who derides the warning of one more far sighted as the words of a man who does not forget that he is a politician .- Boston Post (Dem.)
