CELESTINE J. BLAIR,

What's in a Name?

Shakesneare says: "A rose without a name would smell as sweet." Nevertheless just at the dawn of the XXth century, in the year of grace 1890, there's quite a great

A Clothler without a name and reputation is heavily handicapped in the race for trade. People like to buy from dealers whose established reputation is a guarantee of fairness and honesty.

Our name -SIMON, THE CLOTHIER -cost oceans of money and months of toll and experiment to make it what it is to-day -and it's cheap at the price. It is the standard of excellence, the guarantee of supreme superiority, and it stamps every garment which hears this label (Gus Simon,) as being the BEST that man can produce. Our name has a FINE CLOTHING (value to you. The reputation of a clothier is the accomplated evidence of many transactions with many custo mers. A good name can only be founded on continued "merit in merchandise." Our merchandise is always meritorious. The value of anything is what it will bring in the market. When a manufacturer gets an advanced price for his product, he gets it because it is worth it. Our goods command high prices but we invariably sell them low. as we not only gain a reputation thereby but also the customer. Some men cavil and say, "You pay extra for the name." So do you! It's worth it. When a man's reputation commands a higher price it's always because it's worth it. By his reputation one man can borrow money at 4 per cent.; another must pay 8. The act is the same, the money the same, but one is secure and the other is not. Reputation makes the

When you buy our goods you get our good name with them. It is blended in with every seam and button hole. You get the name and more, you get the quality that made the name-Best quality.

Cling tightly to this word "quality." Hold it up and examine it, study it and think about it. The profits of the clothing business are seemingly locked in an impregnable vault, but the combination unlocks at the word "quality." Experience will teach you that by the workings of the law of compensation, all things cost about the same. Your loss of trade and reputation on inferior goods makes them cost as much as the best.

you buy the best and have it, or will you play at money-making and buy trash and lose trade?

Largely successful merchants in the clothing trade now-a-days deal only in the best qualities. Every great success has been built on this foundation. Permatent success requires reputation. Count over the big men of the 'rade-there's the proof.

Reputation can only be secured in one way—buy and sell best qualities and let the customers tell the story. It is the best advertising and the cheapest you ever did. Our customers will talk about the kind of Clothes we keep, as there's so much in them to talk about - the fit, the fabric, the fashion. That extreme FINENESS OF FIN-ISH you can't find in other makes. And the good things they'll say about the clothes they'll say about us-if you buy

We're ready for Fall. Why not let our good name be your mascot for the season? Drop in and see us. You know where my store is. We'll we gind to see you, or if you can't come to see us, send us word and we'll call on you at home. By buying Groceries, Clothing, etc., of us you save lots of money by the transaction—a fact which you do not realize when you buy elsewhere in town

'em. Merchant and merchandise are always classed together. Bad, good or best, only
