The Lady and the Cigar. The train from Paris to Versailles was to leave in five minutes. An elegantly dressed gentleman entered a first-class carriage. He has a burning cigar in his mouth. He is about 'to take his seat when he perceives an elderly lady in the carriage. Being a gentleman, he raises the window and is about to throw out the cigar, when the tive days.

On the principal steet we heard music in the distance, and coming nearer found that a wedding was in progress, A matting was spread upon the ground, upon which the bride, a rather old and rather cross looking Nubian girl, sat. Her veil was the usual shawl, this time of white. Also upon the matting sat the musicians, two drummers playing upon a single instrument, a peculiarily long drum. A woman sat at one end of it, a man at the other, both heating together, using alternately the palm of the hand and a drumstick.

Td this music a number of women in gay dresses were dancing, two at a time, taking turns in flonrishing over the head of the bride a pole about six feet long. We stopped in the encircling crowd to see what was going on, and had stood there but two or three mos m-nts when one of the women who had been dancing sudden'y threw herself headlong upon the matting, closed her eyes and seemed to go off in a kind of

The other woman ran to her, fassed over her a little, and then drew back to await developments. Petitioning our dragoman to fi d out what this all meant, he said she had been drinking too much of the native wine, and he interpretted the woman whom he questioned about it as saying that she "have de detbil in her." In a few moments she came out of the unconscious condition and began wildly to clutch about her. The umbrella belonging to one of our party being conveniently near she seized upon it, and only with the dragoman's help was it torn away. We passed on, satisfied to assist no more in the festivities.

The Ostrich in California.

Scattered throughout Southern Callfornia are to be found many ostrich farms, but the largest perhaps are those at Fallbrook and Passadena. At the former place there is a ranch which contains seventy. The birds are valued at $1.000 to $1 200 each. They are enormous creatures, six to eight feet high, and weighing 200 to 300 pounds. The females are smaller than the males, and lay about ten eggs, possibly as high as sixteen, one every other day, which are placed in the nest vertically, smallest down.

Under certain circumstances a bird may lay as many as fifty eggs in a year, quite large, measuring eighteen inches in circumference and weighing three to four pounds. The shells are one-twelfth of an inch thick, and are used by the natives as water vessels. They feed on alfalfa, cabbage, cora, doura (Indian millet), stc., and each adult consumes about forty pounds of food daily. They will swallow almost anything, large. stones, bits of brick, metals, coin, etc., all of which they are able to digest.

One of the birds at San Diego is said to be thirty-two years old, but in their native land they are reputed to live to the advanced age of eighty to one hundred years. The period of incubation
