The Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club.

A few of the hundreds of press notices which the club has received are appended. They appear in Ebersburg at the Teachers' Institute.

The skillful and artistic playing of this club is well-known, and the choice programme was unique and varied, giving constant pleasure.

Their performance fairly captured the vast audience, and their selections brought well merited applause.

The Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club are meeting with the most phenomenal success at Saratoga. They fairly captivate the large audiences which listen to them at every performance.

The Harmonious solos of Mr. B. E. Shattuck were finely rendered and beautifully coordinated. He plays the harmonica and banjo together, which sounds like a miniature brass band, and captivated the immense audience present.

George Hoffmann, an old farmer aged about sixty-five years, keeps a little country store in Barr township. Lately he has been much worried by a number of young men who go there to annoy him and take possession of his store.

At a meeting held on Friday evening for the purpose of helping along the project of holding a fair at Ebersburg, quite a number were in attendance and all enthusiastically in favor of the enterprise.

The committee in charge of letting the contracts for building the fence and grading the track reported that they had let the contract for grading a level track to J. A. Schenker for the sum of $1,800 and the contract for building the fence to Fred Davis for the sum of $2,49 a panel.

The fence is to be seven feet high, with iron posts four feet in the ground, and two strands of barbed wire stretched across the top of the fence.

The track is a half mile long, no grade and forty feet wide.

Both Mr. Shoemaker and Mr. Davis have commended the work and it is their intention, unless delayed by unexceptionable bad weather, to complete their work this fall.

Geo. R. Wendling. The following are fair specimens of the press notices of the famous lecturer, Geo. R. Wendling, who will lecture at the Teachers' Institute, November 18th.

One of the foremost orators of this generation. -Allan (Ill) Democrat.

An eloquent man. -Ann Arbor (Mich) Herald.

St. Augustine, Pa., Oct. 23, 1890. Editor Cambria Freeman:

SIR: I have just learned that a report is being circulated in the northern part of Cambria county that the Farmers' Alliance of Cambria county was getting up for the purpose of endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Samuel Patterson for the Legislature.

As president of the above organization I beg leave to say that Mr. Patterson is utterly unknown to me, and through his own fault. I am informed that he paid an official visit to St. Augustine a few days ago in connection with some branch of the census.

I saw him with a well-known Republican of this place who could have given Mr. Patterson an introduction to me, had he thought such an act of courtesy desirable or beneficial to Republican interests.

The Republican candidate for Governor is openly charged by his party with bribery, perjury and fraud.

These charges it seems, cannot be truthfully contradicted. In our own county we have the nauseating correspondence in mind which took place last fall, backed up by the affidavits of some of the parties, which should remain as a beacon light for every honest man to shun all affiliation with the party they represent.
