We have been inclined to think of late that the schools in this tewnship have been advancing, but we do not think that some of the teachers have been showing a very good example by their conduct lately. On last Friday evening John Glasgow, principal of the Glasgow schools, interviewed Teacher George Williams at John F. Hollen's, in Glasgow. After talking some time they commenced quarrelling, but were soon quieted by Mr. Hellen who grabbed a chair and held it is a threatening manner. They got lond again, however, and when Williams reached to hip pocket (he says for his person.) Glasgow drew his revolver and shot to kill, the ball passing through Wiltirms' coat, but not injuring him. The trouble grew out of a love affair about a certain school marm in this tempebly. The
