AN EXCITING ADVENTURE.

Practical Joke Which Might Easily Have Ended in a Trage y. For myself, I was "chopped down" once, and once only, writes Charles G. D. Roberts, in St. Nicholas. It happened in this way. In the midwinter of 1879, I had occasion to visit the chief camp of the Little Madawaska. Coming from the city, and to a camp where I was a stranger to all the men, I was not unnaturally regarded as a pronounced specimen of the greenhorn. I took no pains to tell any one what the boss already well knew, that is, that I had been a frequenter of the camps from my boyhood. Many and many a neat trap was laid for my apparently "tender" feet, but I avoided them all as if by accident. As for climbing a tree, I always laughed at the idea when it was proposed to me: I always suggested that it might spoil my clothes. Before long the men, by putting little things together, came to the conclusion that I was an old stager; and, rather sheepishly, they gave over their attempts to entrap me. Then I graciously waved my hand, as it were, and was frankly received as a veteran, cleared from every suspicion of being green. At last the day came when I did wish to climb a tree. The camp was on a high plateau, and not far off towered a magnificent pine tree, growing out of the summit of a knoll in such a way as to command all the surrounding country. Its branches were phenomenally thick; its girth of trunk was magnificent. And this tree I resolved one day to climb, in order to get a clear idea of the lay of the land. Of course l strolled off surreptitiously, and, as I thought, unwatched. But there I was much mistaken. No sooner was I twothirds of the way up the tree than, with shouts of laughter, the lumbermen rushed out of the surrounding cover and proceeded to chop me down. The chance was too good for them to lose.

I concealed my annoyance, and made no attempt to descend. On the contrary I thanked them for the little attention, and climbed a few feet further up, to secure a position which I saw would be a safe one for me when the tree should fall. As I did so, I perceived, with a gasp and a tremor, that I was not alone in the tree.

There, not ten feet above me, stretched at full length along a large branch, was a huge panther, glaring with rage and terror. From the men below his form was quite concealed. Glancing restlesslessly from me to my pursuers, the brute seemed uncertain just what to do, As I carefully refrained from climbing any further up, and tried to assume an air of not having observed him, he ap-parently concluded that I was not his worst enemy. In fact, I dare say he understood what was going on and realized that he and I were fellow-sufferers. I laughed softly to myself as I thought how my tormentors would be taken aback when that panther should come down among them. I decided that, considering their numbers, there would be at least no more danger for them than that to which they were exposing me in their reckless fooling. And, already influenced by that touch of nature which makes us so wondrous kind, I began to hope that the panther would succeed in making his escape. The trunk of the pine was so thick that I might almost have reached the ground before the choppers could cut it through. At last it gave a mighty shudder and sagged to one side. I balanced myself nimbly on the upper side, steadying myself by a convenient branch. The great mass of foliage, presenting a wide surface to the air, made the fall a comparatively slow one; but the tremendous sweep of the draught upward, as the tree-top described its gigantic arc. gave me a sickening sensation. Then came the final dull and thunderous crash, and -in an instant, I found myself standing in my place, jarred but unhart, with the snow threshed up all about me.

The next instant there was another roar, or rather a sort of screaming yell, overwhelming the riotous laughter of the woodsmen; and out of the confusion of pine-boughs shot the tawny form of the panther in a whirlwind of fury. One of the choppers was in his path, and was bowled over like a clumsy nine-pin. The next bound brought the beast on to the backs of a yoke of oxen, and his cruel claws severely scratched the oxen's necks. As the poor animals bellowed and fell on their knees, the panther paused, with some idea, apparently, of fighting the whole assembled party. But as the men, recovered from their first amazement, rushed with their axes to the rescue of the oxen, the panther saw that the odds were all against him. He turned half round and greeted his enemies with one terrific and strident snarl, then bounded off into the forest at a pace which made it idle to pursue him. The owner of the oxen hurled an axe after him, but the missile flew wide of its mark.

HEROSS OF THE SEA.

Noble Americans Who Have Won Renown In Our Navy. The story of the American navy is an inexhaustible fountain of inspiration. No page in the history of the race is brighter than that which tells of the leeds wrought to sustain the primacy of "Columbia" as the "gem of the ocean." England, long the mistress of the seas, can not, in the interval since the uprising of the colonies, show a braver record. Wherever the British drumbeat is heard are celebrated the glories of Trafalgar and the Nile, and the Baltic and a thousand other victories. But who shall say that any of these surpassed the valorous achievements of our second conflict with the mother country, when she was taught, for the first time, that Britannia did not necessarily rule the wave? We have only, in justification, to point to "Old Ironsides." to gallant Lawrence in the Chesapeake, to Perry on Lake Erie, to Macdonough on Lake Champlain, and to the American privateers which in 1812-'15 swept the Atlantic free of English commerce. Passing to a later day we recall the lesson taught by Decatur on the Barbary coast and the admonition conveyed to the Mexicans at Vera Cruz. And what combat shall furnish the parallel to the work of the navy in the civil war? Its triumphs adorn the proudest places in American history. What emotions well up as the eye reverts to marvelous strides taken "Uncle Sam's web feet;" as it traces the establishment of a three thousand-mile blockade; the victory in Hampton Roads; the energy and fidelity of Dupont and Dahlgren at Charleston; the services of grand old Foote and Porter and Walke on "inland river and broad bayou:" the mad assaults of poor Jack at Sumter and Fisher; the exploits of Cushing and the Albemarle; the memorable duel of the Alabama and Kearsarge off Cherbourg, and, above all, the heroic performances of the great admiral at New Orleans and in the momentous encounter off Mobile bay! These and a hundred other passages appeal irresistibly to the imagination, the memory and the gratitude of every American citizen worthy of the name. They are an appropriate basis from which to survey the prospects of the American naval future.-Brooklyn Eagle. A Moving Friendship. Travers-How much are these trou-

and Pocahontas Romance.

Pocahontas has been outdone by an Alaskan maiden. John Smith was only EBENSBURG. - - PENN'A in danger of having his brains spattered over the surrounding real estate when Pocahontas rescued him with her love. The John Smith of Alaska was not only in danger of being killed, but of being eaten, when the woman in whose eyes he found favor saved him. The Alaska John Smith, says the San Francisco Examiner, was not a titled explorer when he fell into the hands of the savages, nor was his name John Smith. He was only a common yellowskinned sea cook. His name is Ab Wing, and there is nothing attractive about him. He is about as homely a mixture of Chinaman and Malay pirate as could be found in a day's walk. His Pocahontas answers to the name of Julie just now, but nobody knows what way from being Pocahontas' equal in beauty, and the Siwash features of generations were consolidated when her face was made. Still the romance is of Europe. there.

Wing arrived here on a codfish schoon-er several months since, but have not gone into society yet. They reside on Ross alley, in Chinatown, and submit-Ross alley, in Chinatown, and submit ted to an interview yesterday. They only submitted to it, they did not take part in it, and when it came to securing the story of their love the reporter was obliged to obtain his information from a third party, to whom Wing had confided it in explanation of his off-color bride. Ah Wing, some nine years ago, was a cook in the employ of the Navy Department, and was shipped north on th Jamestown. While on the Sitka station Wing's time expired or he deserted -just which is not quite plain-and shipped aboard a whaler. The whaler was wrecked and Wing was cast up on an inhospitable ice-floe. Julie was th daughter of a chief of a tribe of Indians, and, while hunting with her father, discovered Ah Wing, who was as near dead from starvation, cold and ex posure as it was possible for him to b and retain life. For days and day Julie nursed him, and he finally recov ered, to find himself the object of great deal of attention on the part of the Indians. They could speak no Chinese or English, and Wing had no comprehension of their dialect. He was at a loss to understand the solicitude with which they fed him and the interest they took in watching the accumula tion of fat on his ribs. At last the horrid truth dawned upon him-at least so he says. They were going to barbecu and eat him-

He attempted to escape, but was capt ured and returned to the vitinge and pr under guard. The fatal day arrived Wing was informed by pantomime the an incision would be made in his neck and his life fluid allowed to escape into a soap-stone basin. He gave all up for lost, when he was inspired by the sight of Julie in tears. He made love to her. She comprehended and went to ask papa The old chief was fond of his daught and could refuse her nothing. He issu an edict against baked Wing. The re mainder of the village protested, and the chief was obliged to state why he desired the stranger's life preserved The objectors gave in and Wing an Julie were married in Indian style. Wing lived with the tribe for som time, but never became very popular. He was not much of a hunter, and preferred to lie around the house, sewing with the women, to chasing polar bears, walruses, seals and the like. Finally he had a chance to escape. boat's crew came in from a schooner t trade for skins. Their cook was dead, and Wing begged them to take him away with them. Wing's father-in-law gave him leave of absence for three months and sent Julie along with him to insure his return. They sailed away, and after much marine wandering and transferring from one vessel to another, arrived in San Francisco. Wing had a taste for the needle and secured a job of tailoring. The faithful Julie proved an adept and shares Wing's labors. They still find of Indian. Julie knows a few of English and a few of Chinese.

When their discussions become animated they resort to all three languages at once, and the talk is very exciting There is a little Wing now, and he is learning all three languages. Julie will not live long here; she already shows signs of consumption, de veloped presumably by the unaccustomed foul air. The story has been pretty well authenticated, with the exception of the intention of the Indians to eat Wing after killing him. His own countrymen do not believe this part of the story, but Wing adheres to it stoutly, and the strongest tie between him and his wife is his gratitude to her for saving him from such a fate. THE beautiful swallow-tailed kite has accomplished the feat of flying across the whole Atlantic Ocean. THE organs of smell in the turkey, vulture and carrion crow are so delicate that they can scent their food for a distance of forty miles. THE best speed of a railway train is only a little more than half the velocity of the golden eagle, the flight of which often attains to the rate of 140 miles an Or all birds, the condor mounts highest into the atmosphere. Humboldt describes the flight of this bird in the Audes to be at least 20,000 feet above the level of the sea. THE Duke of Beaufort upon one occa sion picked up a brace of grouse which had canoned and killed each other in midair, and colliding is not an infrequent occurrence. Swifts and swallows fly every year from England to Southern Africa and to the Moluccas, and the restless, wandering flight of various oceanic birds is still more surprising. THE way of an eagle in the air is one of those things of which Solomon expressed himself ignorant, and there is something truly marvelous in the mech-

Urox one occasion a falcon was observed to cut a snipe right in two, with such strength and speed did it cut down its prey. Sparrowhawks and merlins have not infrequently been known to crash through thick plate glass windows when in pursuit of prey or at caged birds. THE enormous appetite of the giant penguin (which weighs about eighty pounds) may havy something to do with its restricted powers of flight, and in the stomach of one of these were found ten pounds of quartz, granite, and trap fragments, swallowed most likely to pro mote digestion. THE American passenger pigeon compasses the whole Atlantic ocean. The speed of its flight is approximately known, and it is able to cover 1,600 miles in twenty-four hours. This, indeed, is marvelous when it is seen that, flying at the rate of nearly seventy miles an hour, it takes the bird two days and nights to cross.

There is a strong prejudice against mixed schools for the races and it has resulted in the establishment of a large number of "colored schools." A Law has been passed in Kansas by which the districts may select and own such text-books as they choose. A quantity of text-books will be purchased for the schools and placed at the disposal of the pupils, thus virtually

An Indian Legend Accounting for the White Man's Superiority. Among the Seminale Indians there is singular tradition regarding the white man's origin and superiority. They say that when the Great Spirit umde the earth he also made three mex, all of whom were fair-complexioned; and that after making them he led them to the margin of a small lake, and he bade them leap in and wash. One obeyed, and came out of the water perer and fairer than before. The second hesi tated a moment, during which time the water, agitated by the first, became muddy, and when he bathed he came up copper colored. The third did not lear in till the water became black with mud, and he came out its own color. Then the Great Spirit laid before them three packages and, out of pity for his misfortune in color, gave the black man first choice. He took bold of each of the packages and, having felt their weight, chose the heaviest; the coppercolored chose the next heaviest, leaving the white man the lightest. When the packages were opened the first was found to contain spades, hoes and all the implements of labor; the second enwrapped hunting, fishing and warlike apparatus: the third gave the white man pens, link and paper-the engines of the mind, the means of mutual improvement, the social link of humanity, the foundation of the white man's superiority.-Waterbury American.

Poor Country for Doctors. An African chief had a bad cold and sent for his family physician. This gentleman could no more cure a cold than any civilized doctor, and was as little likely to confess it. His business, of course, was to give a prescription not impossible to be made up, but a little out of the way, so as to inspire confidence and suggests anatomical study. He prescribed a little fat cut from the heart of a fat man. Unhappily (for the doctor). all the attendants of the chief were lean, but the doctor himself was fat, and the chief, being unaccustomed to wait for any thing-far less a cure for a cold-immediately put him to death and put his advice into execution.

Mixed Their Babies Up. Two mothers of New York accidental-
