

THE BIG HORN SHEEP.

Towering Precipitous Blandly Descended by the Woolly Bomber.

A Dealer of the Crags and Cliffs of the Rocky Mountain—How the Cautious Animals Escape from the Gun of the Hunter.

In a Mads estate near St. Louis, says the Kansas City Star, is a woolly specimen of the Rocky Mountain sheep of the Rocky mountains. This animal is not only very shy, but having an appetite for vegetation which can only be discovered among the very highest plateaus of the Rocky mountains, it is a dweller of the crags and cliffs. It is seldom that its hoofs are seen upon the ground, and it is found in an altitude of 9,000 feet. Its manner of life and its place of living make it a different animal from the hunter and the deer and other mountain Indians in the day of the bow and arrow. In the killing of a big horn is a feat, and its horns are very scarce and not at all plentiful.

WHICH IS THE MOTHER?

The Hen That Lays the Egg or the Chick That Hatches It? Which is the mother of the chicken that hatches it? This, says the New York Tribune, is a question just decided by Justice McMahon of Parkville, Mo., but interesting suburb of the City of Churches. It is the first case of the kind known to have been brought into court, and by reason of its unique importance the trial has occupied much of the time of the presiding justice.

The facts are that a Farmer McCormick and Farmer Gormley are next door neighbors, and their henries adjoin each other. Farmer McCormick's hen laid an egg, and the fowls belonging to his neighbor are of the ordinary farm-yard standard. It was testified that one of Farmer McCormick's hens, resembling one of the farmer's and indistinguishable from the other, laid two eggs, as divers times, on Farmer Gormley's premises. The triumphant hen which heralded this material achievement did not suggest to Farmer Gormley the propriety of picking out the eggs and raising the chickens, but the possession of the owner of the hen. On the contrary, he promptly put her under a sitting hen owned by himself and in due course of time they were hatched.

So soon as their feathers and little red combs began to grow Farmer McCormick observed that these dubious chickens were full-blooded game birds, like those of his own henry, and he made a demand for them. Farmer Gormley denied the claim of ownership with emphasis and disdain. Then Farmer McCormick summoned his chicken-raising neighbor before the court for trial, and the case was joined. The question was not between hen and hen, but between farmer and farmer; or, rather, it was a question as to whose hen was the mother of the chickens. The ordinary common sense would suggest that as the hatching of the chickens was a mere mechanical process, the chicken depends upon the egg, as science has demonstrated most thoroughly, it is not characteristic, or necessarily even suggestive, of motherhood. The sitting hen is unquestionably an efficient incubator, and so, would be a rooster if you could get him to sit long enough; but who would prefer to have a rooster sitting upon a dozen broods? Justice McMahon has decided that Farmer McCormick must return the two chickens to Farmer Gormley or pay to him the full amount of their value. But is not Farmer Gormley entitled to pay for the labor and services of his hen in hatching the eggs? The decision of the justice is righteous as to the main point at issue, but he seems to have overlooked the propriety of a counter claim. We advise Farmer Gormley to appeal.

PECULIAR MANIA.

An Australian Kleptomaniac Whose Weakness Was Handkerchiefs. Probably no unevils man believes in kleptomaniacs, says the Hospital. Even among civilized peoples many persons smile incredulously when they are told of the acts of kleptomaniacs. They regard the kleptomaniac as a thief with a name, and the name has been invented for the purpose of screening the higher classes who indulge in the same vices.
