Death of Judge Potts.

Judge James Potts, of Johnstown, died at the home of his daughter in Oil City. Pa., on Thursday of last week, aged about 82 years. Judge Potts had been a resident of Johnstown, since 1839 and up until the time of the flood when his home and all his possessions were washed away, one daughter lost her life, and the Judge narrowly escaped by floating from his home to the stone bridge. After that ever memorable event, Judge Potts made his home with a daughter in Oil City where his life gradually ebbed away from the infirmities of age. Judge Potts was admit ted to the Cambria county Bar in 1846 and practiced his profession up until 1871 when a District Court having been established in Johnstown, Mr. Potts was elected Judge. After the Court was abollshed by the adoption of the new constitution Judge Potts resumed the practice of the law and continued in practice up until the time of the flood when as we have said, the Judge's home was broken up and being too old to stand the hardships entailed on a residence in Johnstown after the flood, went to Oil City to make his home with his daughter. Mrs. Potts died in 1879.
