The survey will extend from Gallitzin along the P. R. R. to Pittsburg, and the result is anticipated with unusual interest by geologists throughout the state. The necessity for such survey arises from the fact that a new school of geologists persist in claiming that the Pittsburg coal system is geologically the same as the carboniferous strata in Clearfield, Cambria and Somerset. Mr. Scott, who is a newspaper man of long experience, has made erable credit to him and his profession that he has been selected by londing scientists to determine the matter at issue: If, as he seems to claim, the Clearfield coal veins all ie beneath the Pittsburg system, it will be a matter of very considerable economic
