Counterfeit dollars bearing the date of 1891 are in circulation. It is almost perfect in make-up, size and appearance, but may be easily detected by the weight, being a quarter of an ounce lighter than the genuine. People should keep a sharp look-out for the dollar of 1891.

In front of one of the runners but managed to cling to the sled until the team was stopped. As it was, she was severely hurt but luckily escaped being seriously hurt.

The fruitful result of the election is already manifested in Allegheny county a few miles from Dayton. A sheep drover, awake to his own interests, met the unsuspecting owner of the sheep with the unanswerable argument that the country was now Democratic, that the tariff had been taken off of wool, that free trade meant no consideration for sheep in the spring, and that they had better be sold for something now. The drover got $75 from him, but then gave him nothing in his way. —Dayton News.

Frederick Brant, a farmer living near Somerset, Pa., went to Jersey City, Friday, to buy "green goods" for which he had negotiated with George Williams. He finally gave Brant $80 to pay his way back to Somerset, but before he could board his train both men were arrested as suspicious characters. Brant told his story. Williams refused to give his real name or residence, for fear newspaper notoriety might ruin him and make trouble for his family. Both men were locked up.

Miss Margaret Hamilton, formerly a teacher in the Altoona public schools, made a name for herself in a unusual manner at Kittanning, Armstrong county, on Sunday morning. She had been teaching in Allegheny and was spending the Thanksgiving vacation with her sister at Kittanning. She was sitting at the table when she suddenly became delirious, and on Sunday morning about 3 o'clock she in some way eluded the vigilance of her nurses and escaped from the house. Search was immediately instituted, and an hour later her dead body was found in a stream a short distance from the house.

The county commissioners of Somerset county do not propose to allow the South Penn. Railroad Company to evade the payment of taxes, even if it is not in real existence, if they can help it. Last year every foot of property belonging to the defective corporation was assessed, the whole aggregating in value to $175,000, on which were placed taxes to the amount of $2800. An attempt was made to collect the tax, but it was not successful. Now the commissioners propose to put the property up for sale with the list of unassessed lands and collect the taxes in that way. It is to be hoped that the commissioners will be successful in their efforts.

The fire, which was supposed to have been extinguished in the Honey Brook mine near Hazleton, last week, has broken out afresh. A burst fire is now raging above the mine gangway. The interior of the mine has been so wrecked that a total collapse is anticipated and workmen dare not enter it. The vein now burning is one of the richest in the region, and mines which have been more recently opened are in the same basin. Millions of tons of coal are thus exposed to the ravages of the fire, and if the efforts which are now being made to extinguish it prove unsuccessful, this vast field of coal may be destroyed. Water is again being pumped into it to the mine.

Frank Hodge and William Murphy, two crooks who were incarcerated in the Blair county jail, at Hollidaysburg, on a charge of shooting a companion about a month ago in Altoona, succeeded in making their escape on Friday night. They broke up their iron cot and with the saw they sawed a hole through the outer wall of the jail, and by the aid of the bed-clothes, they let themselves down into the jail yard. The lock which secured the big gate with powder and blew it into fragments. About a week ago two or three friends of the prisoner called to see them, which will probably account for the powder, fire and case-knife being in their possession.

On Thursday of last week, Gilbert Greenberg, chief of the Huntingdon fire department and ex-president of the State Fireman's Association undertook to fulfill the requirements of an election by walking across the Juniata river at its widest point there. The recent rains had raised the river considerably and Chief Greenberg when only a little way out from the shore was carried off his feet and swept down the river. The river banks were lined with people on either side and a brass band was waiting to receive the venture-swimmer. Owing to his heavy clothes, Chief Greenberg was drawn under the water several times and when he had finally given up, Thomas Long, who had gone to his rescue in a boat drew him in and brought him to shore in an unconscious condition. He was finally resuscitated.

There is a variation in the usual breach of promise proceedings in a case developed at Johnstown. Frederick Kistowetz, a young German, has entered suit in the county court against Bertha Ludok, a woman of the same nationality, for breach of promise. At the preliminary hearing before Justice Bland the young man swore that the courtship and engagement had progressed through the usual stages to the point where he had procured a marriage license. Then the girl repudiated the contract and would not marry. He appeals to the courts to make her live up to her part of the agreement. The defendant alleges that her ardent lover was too intense in the prosecution of his suit, threatening to make her either his wife or an angel. She was afraid he would kill her anyway, and she refused to marry her prospective executioner.

Joseph Lydie, a merchant of Greenville, Indiana county, was the victim of an attempted robbery on Monday night. Just before closing time Lydie gave his little daughter a tin box containing a sum of money, and told her to run home with it. Only a short distance from the store, at the same time he put a larger sum of paper money in his pocket. Then he went outside the store to put up the wooden shutters. As he stepped out he was followed by an unseen assailant. A fight followed, which Mrs. Lydie's attention was attracted. An alarm was given and the would-be robber fled. A posse was organized and in a few minutes the pursuit of the fugitive was taken up. He was traced to Dixonville, then to Marion Center, and from there he took a circuitous route. A relay of pursuers took up the chase at Marion and are still on the trail.

George Smith, of Conewago township, Indiana county, died in the 92nd year of his age last week. He was born in April, 1800, and was one of the first settlers of the township in which he lived. Mr. Smith was a well-to-do farmer in his latter years. It is said that he had a habit of hoarding away money—secretly it about the house—which proved very expensive to him, as he once had a large sum destroyed by mice and was once or twice the victim of robbers. When the old house in which he lived for many years was torn down, money was found in a man's nook, and several coffee extract boxes filled with gold and silver, which he had forgotten all about were found within the walls. Mr. Smith paid little attention to his personal appearance, and would be mistaken by a stranger for one of the poorest instead of one of the wealthiest men in the township. He was twice married and leaves a family of eight children, most of whom his economy and thrift have left in possession of comfortable fortunes.

In addition to the above it now looks as if the glass works and mill at Monaca will be put in operation again, and business men in a position to know, say the building of the Pennsylvania and Eastern railroad from Bellefonte to Watsonia is assured within a year, and the same is subject to the same employment for over one thousand men. The well-known Collins Brothers are now the head men of the furnace company.

A Boom for Souman.

The Altoona Tribune Wednesday says: Within the next few weeks the Cambria Mining and Manufacturing Company, with headquarters at No. 119 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, will award contracts for the sinking of two shafts, the successful operation of which will, with some coke ovens now in contemplation, give employment to 800 men.

It is the intention of the company to sink two shafts near Sonman station, on the Cambria county, along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, about twenty miles west of this city, and work three veins of coal from this operation, having an output of 1,000 tons per day.

The main shaft will be put down about 150 yards from Sonman station, on the south side of the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad and will be 112 1/2 feet in the clear and about 300 feet deep. The inside timbering will consist of the most modern and labor-saving machinery, of which two will be for cage ways, while the remaining portion will be used as a means of ventilation for the mine.

The latest and most improved appliances for the rapid handling of cars, pushing them on and off the cages, will be employed, as the time necessary for a round trip to be made with the cages will be only thirty seconds. The hoisting plant will consist of the most modern and labor-saving machinery, the motive power being a double engine of 250 horse power. The machinery will be built in such that coal can be hoisted from all three veins from the same shaft.

The second shaft will be about ten feet square, sunk to the same depth as the other. It will be situated about 150 feet from the main shaft, as required by law, and will be used as a means of ventilation for the mine. In addition a winding staircase will be built in this air course, the purpose of which is to furnish a traveling way for the men in case of an accident or an explosion in which the main shaft would be rendered useless.

The Cambria Mining and Manufacturing Company, John Baird, No. 119 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, president, owns the large Sonman tract in Cambria county, consisting of 5,000 acres of the choicest coal land in that region. Of this the company will tap 600 acres from the shaft at Sonman, taking the coal from the whole three veins—the "E" or Lemmon; the "D" and the "C" or Miller seams. The "E" seam is believed to be about 300 feet under the surface at the point where the shaft will be sunk. In the Miller vein alone there are 5,000 tons of coal to the acre, while the others will average a little less. Taking the three seams a conservative average would be 12,000 tons per acre. There will be 600 acres worked from this operation, so there will be about 7,200,000 tons of coal taken out before the supply is exhausted. Underlying the whole tract there must be 60,000,000 tons of coal of good quality, both for steaming and making coke.

The company has in view the building of 100 coke ovens on the site. The "E" vein is of a superior quality of coking coal and the industry would be a profitable one. Other improvements are also in contemplation by the company.

As soon as possible work will be commenced for laying out a town at Sonman station, as this shaft will, with the coke-oven addition, give employment to a small army of men. There will be a store, probably of brick, built by the company. It is not at all probable that within a year a town of 1,000 or 2,000 inhabitants will be built up at Sonman.

It is estimated that the cost of sinking the shafts, including the coke ovens and other improvements will reach $1,000,000. It is not the intention of the Cambria Mining and Manufacturing Company to operate this shaft when completed. The company will lease the whole thing to some operating coal company and will receive a royalty on each ton of coal mined. They have other operations leased on the Sonman tract.

A branch two miles in length will be built from the main line of the railroad to Sonman, thus enabling other parts of this immense body of coal to be worked and conveyed to the market.

The entire work of sinking the shaft and making all other improvements will be under the supervision of Mr. J. M. Powell, of this city, who occupies the responsible position of mining engineer and general local manager for the Cambria Mining and Manufacturing Company. It is expected that the work will be completed by June 1, 1893.

Shortly after the closing of Grover Cleveland the calamity waiters had it reported that the Valentine Iron Company was going to close down its furnaces and works at Bellefonte. Not only has this proved to be a mistake, but the company reported that work will soon be commenced to put the plant of the Bellefonte Furnace Company in condition to resume operations early next year. This plant has been idle for two years, and its resumption means employment for over one thousand men. The well-known Collins Brothers are now the head men of the furnace company.

In addition to the above it now looks as if the glass works and mill at Monaca will be put in operation again, and business men in a position to know, say the building of the Pennsylvania and Eastern railroad from Bellefonte to Watsonia is assured within a year, and the same is subject to the same employment for over one thousand men.
