Washington Letter.

Washington D. C., Dec. 31, 1892, peaker Crisp's visit to President-elect Cleveland, on a special invitation from the latter, has been the most absorbing topic of conversation in political circles his week. The visit of the Speaker of the Democratic House—the highest position now held by a Democrat—to the Democratic President-elect was, of course, naturally an event of great interest to Democrats, but the efforts of the busybodies who have ever since the election been striving to create the impression that these two eminent Democrats were antagonistic towards each other has made it of interest to everybody, except he aforesaid busy-bodies who expressed loubts about the two men holding a conference until it had actually been held. That was natural, too, for that conference topped over all of the carefully contructed stories of enmity between the peaker and the President-elect which had been so widely circulated during the last six or eight weeks. Those who profess to see something strange in the invitation and visit forget that for nearly two years past Speaker Crisp has been the official leader of the Democratic party. The strange thing would have been for Mr. Cleveland, the leader elect, to have neglected to get the views of the party's present official leader. Senator Carlisle's experience with the New York reporters this week caused him to "swear off" on being interviewed. He says he was approached by ome twenty odd reporters and to each of them he gave the same answer-that he had nothing to say to the public vet every one of them wrote up interiews with him, making him say things e had never dreamed of. He says, further, that any future publication purporting to be his opinion which does not have his signature attached will be bogus. Mr. Carlisle's friends say that for private reasons he has declined the Secetaryship of the Treasury, which Mr.

leveland tendered to him. A rumor is current here that Mr. Cleveland has succeeded in persuading Hon. Don. M. Dickinson to be his Secretary of State. This, as the late Artemus Ward would have said, is important if true. Mr. Dickinson told his friends when he was here the other day that he would not be a member of the

A Senator who saw and talked with Mr. Cleveland this week says that one of the first things he proposes to do after becoming President is to put a man at the head of the pension bureau who will take the work of that office entirely out of politics and run it on strictly busness principles. Speaker Crisp has some very decided leas on the immigration question, and they do not agree with those most popular just now. He thinks it will be a mistake to suspend all immigration, but favors the enactment of laws that will shut out and keep out the undesirable immigrant, while welcoming those made of the stuff to make good citizens. He ers however that the cholers scare and other influences will be too much for Congress, and that some very radical egislation may be railroaded through.

The Inauguration committee has opened headquarters, and, notwithstanding some friction among citizens concerning the membership of the committee, everything is now moving harmoni ously towards the grandest inauguration the country has ever had.

Representative Geary, of California although a young man, has already gained a reputation for level-headednes far beyond that of many of his older coleagues, and his terse summing up of what the party needs will add to that reputation. He says: "What the Democratic party needs most is to 'get together. We don't want any rows, or cliques or sets of men who wish to tear down present organization and set up ate stands 47 Republicans, 39 Democrats another of their own. It is only by 'getting together' that the Fifty-third Congress will be able to accomplish the mission of tariff revision which the people at the polls directed it to perform. If Senator Gray, of Delaware, omes Mr. Cleveland's Attorney-General as many Democrats now think, it is expected that ex-Secretary Bayard will gain become a member of the Senate. Mr. Harrison has called upon all the executive departments of the Government for information as to unjust disrimination against citizens or railroads of the United States by the Canadian Pacific railroad. This is believed here to mean that he intends to send a special message to Congress recommending etaliatory legislation. The sub-committee of the House Im-nigration committee having the matter in charge has agreed upon a National quarantine bill, and will report it to the full committee next week. M.

Died of Lockjaw.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 2 .- Thomas Ryan, of 34 Newton street, died last night of lockjaw. On Christmas eve, while working in the yard of his house, he slipped and fell to the ground. His hand struck the remains of a sunflower stalk and a small but painful wound was inflicted. He went to a hospital to two splinters in the wound. On the foltrouble him and the flesh around it to Harrison's little grand-daughter is the swell. He went back to the hospital and there, it is alleged, was told that the swelling did not amount to anything. This did not satisfy Ryan and he called on a physician, who poulticed the hand and otherwise treated it

On Friday night Ryan began to act i peculcar manner and to yawn. His manner caused his wife to become uneasy, and she called upon the druggist. ## A Church Riot.

McArthur, O., Dec. 31.—Particulars have reached here of a shocking affair at a country church near Porter, a dozen miles from Gallipolis. Just as revival services were beginning Clark Watkins caught his sister-in-law, Mrs. Peter Watkins, walking with a man with whom her name had been unpleasantly connected and attacked him with a knife. Both he and the woman rushed into the church, where a general fight stopped the services. When the row was ended it was found that Peter Watkins, the woman's husband, was slain; Harris, the woman's escort, fatally wounded, having a broken skull and several knife wounds; James Grover had one eye cut out, Clark Watkins was beaten almost to death and a half dozen others were hurt. The church was almost completely wrecked.

> Winter Novelties for Ladies. A pretty walking costume is a pleasing picture, but a beautiful ball dress is a poem. Never before has a winter season presented a wider range of fascinating styles as are witness this year. The taste for historical costumes is increasing as we go on, and indeed dressmaking at the present time, absolutely requires some knowledge of the costumes of the past. Such knowledge is especially needed in ball dresses, as the latter more closely resemble their historical models. It is also in evening receptions that one sees those revived styles, such as Henry II., the Regense, the 1845, etc., which do not appear on the street in their pristing garb.
