Our School Building Burned.

On Tuesday morning about half past ine o'clock, Mr. Schnyler Davis while walking up High street, discovered a curl of smoke ascending from the belfry of th school house in this place and knew at once that the building was on fire. He at elaborate, but there are styles to once ran over to the school and notified the teachers in the lower rooms, who hurriedly informed the children that school was dis- plaque with brown velvet trimmissed and to leave the building without mings and bandeau of pink crushany rush. About this time Professor Gib on, in room No. 6 on the second floor heard the cracking of burning wood above so is a black fancy braid with and glancing up through the hole where the rope came through the ceiling from the belfry, saw the flames. He quickly opened cottage bonnet in gilt and pearls, the door and was met by Mr. Davis who by fluted lace aigrettes, magenta, this time had reached Professor Gibson' room with the news of the fire. The pupils were dismissed and hurriedly gathered up their books and marched out, all get- close bonnet in gilt and jet, jewting out without any accident.

In the meantime the cry of fire was sounding through the town and a rush was made from all quarters for the engine house. Several taps on the fire oell notified the people of the presence of fire but the breaking of the rope that rings straw with wings of magenta the bell prevented any further alarm by that means. The hose carriages were run out and a connection made with the plug at the corner of Julian and High streets ing. A broad brim cream legand the hose and nozzle run down High street into the front door of the school building, up stairs and into the garret where the fire was still confined. Had tian bows of cream, is a dream of there been a stream of water through the hose at this time the building could have been saved with but little damage, but no water came. The hose had been put away roses and a Child's Continental and realed on the drum wet and was frozen flat together. Much valuable time was lost in getting the hose pounded apart, and by the time this was done the flames were bursting through the roof and had climbed out through the belfry. Connections had been made by this time with the plugs at Julian and Sample, High and Mary Ann streets and three streams were turned on the burning building and on the Presbyterian parsenage and beautiful millinery display which adjoins the school property on the this city has seen this season. east and on the the Christian church which is on the west. Both the parsonage and the church were on fire several times but by hard work the fire was confined to the chool building which is burned down t the first floor.

The origin of the fire is a matter for conecture, but the general impression seems to be that it was caused by a defective flue. The loss is estimated at about $10, 000 on which there is an insurance of $5, The building was built of brick and heated by steam, the main building having been erected thirty-six years ago by James Myers, of this place, and an addition also of brick erected about ten years ago. The main building contained four rooms and Plain recently refitted with new furniture ar papered and painted. The walls are all standing but will have to be taken down. The directors will at once take the necessary steps for rebuilding as soon as a settlement with the insurance companies is reached.

An Old Timer. One of the most interesting of the exhibits to be made at the World's Fair by the Pennsylnavia railroad will be the locomo tive "John Bull" and a train of cars such as were used on the old Camden and Amboy railroad in 1836. The original locome tive, built in England by Stephenson shipped to this country and put up by Isaac Dripps at Kordentown in 1831, has een for a number of years in the National Museum at Washington. The engine and two of the old passenger coaches have recently been transferred to the shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, where they are undergoing such repairs as may be necessary in order to it them for the trip to Chicago. The ompany proposes to run this train of a comotive and two cars from New York and Philadelphia to Chicago at a date previous to the opening of the fair. The train will be run over the road by easy stages, with frequent stops at prominent stations on the line to afford the public an opportunity of seeing how their grandfathers traveled. The entire trip will be made in daylight and three and a half or four days will be allowed. A number of passengers will be carried from point to point on the line. I is claimed that the antique locomotive with its new coaches, can make thirty miles an hour on easy grades, and, while no sparts of speed will be attempted, it will be run at a very creditable rate of spee throughout the entire 912 miles.
