Mr. Daniel Shuman, a former resident of Jackson township, who last fall pulled up stakes, went west and settled in Dawson county, Nebraska, where he bought a farm, returned with his family on Friday last, having come to the conclusion that there is no better place to live in than Pennsylvania. Mr. Shuman got a letter to sell his farm in Nebraska, took the opportunity and is now going to settle down again in old Cambria.

United States District Attorney McCandless last week obtained from Judge Hoffman of the United States District Court at Pittsburg, a rule on Thomas M. Oaks, sheriff of Huntington county, to show cause why he should not appear and stand trial for contempt of court in allowing W. Ellwood, the postoffice burglar, to escape. Ellwood is the man arrested for robbing postoffices and who escaped from the Huntington jail recently. In the petition asking for the rule on the sheriff, Ellwood's arrest, escape, etc., are detailed by Marshal Harrah.

The dwelling house of James Knabb, of Cherryhill township, was struck by lightning during the storm on Sunday night last. The family were in bed at the time and all were more or less shocked. The greatest charge entered the room where Mr. Knabb and wife were sleeping and set the carpet on fire. Mr. Knabb received time to extinguish the flames. But even then the troubles of the family were not completed. After they had got over the fright caused by the lightning, a heavy gust of wind came along and blew the roof of the building. The interior of the house was flooded and much damage was the result. -Lynchburg Messenger.

Bill Pritts, the crafty moonshiner who for the past 15 months has successfully eluded capture in the mountains of Somerset county, was shot through the forehead by a posse of men led by Sheriff Hochstetler, a son of Fritz's murdered victim, Jonathan Hochstetler. Constable Moore, of Trent, accompanied by three men, two of them sons of Jonathan Hochstetler, went to the house where they found him, and when he started to run shot him in the arm. Pritts surrendered and was taken to his home, but before a physician arrived to dress the wound one of his nephews appeared on the scene and shot Pritts in the back of the head. The old moonshiner's arm was broken by the bullet that pierced his elbow.

The Carrolltown Murder.

Anthony Kaufman, the Slav who was found near Carrolltown on Thursday morning brutally beaten and his companion, John Clemer, near by dead, was brought to the Altoona house the same evening. Kaufman has his left arm broken and has a number of bruises and cuts on his head, but is getting along well and will recover.

The names of three of the murderers are given by Kaufman as Mike McHolistic, John Stiles and Nicholas Pruskar, alias Sumner, while the name of the fourth is unknown. One of them is a heavy-set, short man, with a black mustache and some dark hair; another of them is five feet ten inches tall and weighs about 160 pounds. The other two are of medium size, all Slavs or Huns.

Up to this time they have not been apprehended and the chances are that they will go unpunished. It is reported that the county commissioners have offered a reward of $100 for the capture of the murderers, but if they have they are evidently trying to keep it quiet, as we have seen no public notice of any reward being offered.

Springer's Escape.

Springer escaped unaided, and more than twice as long as the poison by taking a dose of poison, which he did, and on his return home he had on board a very big jug of bug-juice poison. Of course that would bring him through all right. It is reported that he was in the buggy after he was not poisoned in town. -Cantport Standard.

Snake-bitten.

A young man who resides in Cambria county came to town on Saturday evening at a lively rate of speed behind his horse. The gentleman was carrying his thumb pointed upward. Everyone he met he informed he had been snake-bitten. After being in town a few minutes he was in danger of contracting the poison by taking a dose of poison, which he did, and on his return home he had on board a very big jug of bug-juice poison. Of course that would bring him through all right. It is reported that he was in the buggy after he was not poisoned in town. -Cantport Standard.

Correspondence.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 26, 1920. Editor Cambria Freeman:

Thinking that a brief sketch of some of Michigan's summer resorts would be interesting to the readers of the Freeman, I send this hoping it will not lose its way and wander to the waste basket.

Of the inland states in the Union, Michigan is far in advance in the way of pleasant summer resorts. The numerous bays and lakes, dotted the surface of the state, afford unexcelled facilities to pleasure seekers. In the northern part especially, nature has been very lavish in this respect, and along the coast of Lake Michigan are numerous resorts. The prettiest one in proximity to Grand Rapids, is Ottawa Beach, about 35 miles southwest.

On the 18th inst., I, with a number of others, took advantage of the first excursion of the season to the above named place. We left Grand Rapids at 9:30 a. m. and after an hour's ride on the C. & W. M. railroad we reached this beautiful vacation place. The hotel here was not open yet so we crossed the surface of the state, a branch of Lake Michigan, on a boat named "Lizzie Walsh" to the Macatawa side. Here a large park and numerous cottages make it a pleasant place for pleasure seekers. When crossing the lake, the view was attracted by a cottage built on the top of a high hill, which resembled a castle built on a cliff near the ocean. On landing we passed a boat-house where boats can be procured at all hours. As we stepped farther on we came to a hotel, the Macatawa, where we engaged dinner, then we took a stroll to see Lake Michigan. At a distance, where the waters of the lake seemed to kiss the sky, a blue haze was discernible, but as we neared the coast it was almost invisible. The waves were stirred by a gentle breeze which gave the lake a grand appearance. After viewing the lake for some time, we went on our way through the sand back to the walk and started for the park. On reaching the entrance, which is called the "Golden Gate," (golden in name only), we entered and made our way to a walk, which is large enough for a vehicle. The next thing we saw was the appearance of a wood. It is not cleared as the parks are in the East, but this makes it more picturesque. Along our way we noted many beautiful cottages, scattered here and there, also tables where the water had a lunch with them, might set the table and sit down and eat with comfort.

Many of us expressed a wish to stay here during the season. There is a place of worship in this park. After wandering for awhile we came to an opening from which we could see the lake in all its grandeur. We then went to the hotel and after partaking of a good dinner, we went out on the pier to see the lake and the sides of which were people fishing. After some deliberation, the gentlemen of the crowd went fishing and the ladies sat on the pier and read. While we were here the "Lizzie Walsh" went out on an excursion, and as we were too far from the dock when it started we could only watch it go by. Numerous naphtha launches plied their way along the shore, but some ventured almost or entirely out of sight. About 5:45 p. m. we started for the dock, and crossed on the boat to the Ottawa side, where the train was waiting to carry the party home. We arrived at Grand Rapids, about 7:30 p. m., having spent a very pleasant day.

JENNIE CHAVEL.

Excursions to the Atlantic Coast.

On July 11th next the first of a limited summer series of seashore excursions will be run on the Pennsylvania railroad.

The remarkably low rate of $100.00 for the round trip will be offered from Pittsburg, with proportionate rate from other points, and a choice of destinations will be afforded, whether Atlantic City, Cape May, Sea Isle City, or Ocean City.
