Rody Found. On Friday morning of last week the body of an unknown man was found in the woods near Morrellville, at the foot of Laurel hill, by Joseph Potter, who was out hunting. A defaced photograph, a gold ring and an empty revolver were found near the body, which was so badly deomposed that identification was impossible. The photograph was taken to Pittsburg where the photographer who made it furnished a clue that led to the identification of the remains.

John Youngbluth, of Marquette, Michigan, a printer who had left home a year ago in search of work and who had been at the 11th of July, was missing. He had written from Johnstown on the 14th of July and stated that he intended going to Harrisburg, and from that time nothing ture and ring, and a card that was also found, left no room for doubt that the body was that of John Youngbluth, but wheth er it is a case of murder or suicide will probably never be known.
