THE prize given to the World's Fair salesman who sold the largest number of tickets on Chicago day—the rather modest one of a box of cigars—was won by Charles Decker, an old circus ticket seller. He sold 17,800 tickets that day.

It is carrying anti-nepotism to extremes when the Connecticut consolidated railroad company orders the discharge of all relatives of its officials, foremen and trainmen, no matter in what department they are employed.

The bill to repeal the Sherman law still hangs up in the Senate, where according to the rules of that body, a minority can prevent legislation. If the Senate don't soon do something the people will begin thinking of abolishing the Senate.

It is now believed that the paid admissions to the World's Fair will reach 21,000,000 before its close on next Monday. Up to Saturday night 19,712,996 persons had paid to pass through the gates. On Monday 30,546 people were admitted on passes.

ALTHOUGH not a line in the tariff schedules has been changed since Cleveland has been in the presidential chair every ill that has befallen the country is charged upon the Democracy. The readers of Republican papers are assumed to be all fools.

Now is the time to make preparations for getting out the vote. If you have a neighbor that has a long way to go to the polls and no way of going except walking or is sick or infirm, hitch up your team and take him along. Getting out the vote counts and every Democratic vote should be gotten out.

COLONEL A. K. McCLEBE, of the Philadelphia Times, who has been dangerously ill for some time past shows no improvement and his physicians on Wednesday, say there has been a distinct increase in the symptoms of exhaustion of nervous force which have lately caused so much apprehension.

It is not generally known that three cities of Pennsylvania have been the Nation's Capitals, viz: Philadelphia, Lancaster and York. Lancaster was the Capital for three days in September, 1785, and York was the Capital from September 30, 1777, to July, 1778. Altogether nine different cities and towns have figured as the Capital of our country, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Lancaster, York, Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton and New York. In 1800 the seat of government was moved to Washington.

The latest news from Washington indicate that the fight on the Sherman act for the purchase of silver has reached a conclusion by those in favor of silver giving up the fight. It is now said that the bill for the repeal of the Sherman law will be passed by the Senate and sent to the House on Saturday evening or at latest, on Monday. It will at once pass that body and be sent to the President who will write his name to it, and the Sherman act that has been responsible for much of the depression in business will be a thing of the past.

CONSIDERABLE speculation has been going the rounds of the newspapers lately as to whether there is a marriage license law in force in Pennsylvania at the present time, many people believing that the new law passed by the legislature last winter and which goes into effect on and after October 1, 1893 repealed the present law. Attorney General Hensel, the other day in response to a question from A. J. Fortin, first assistant clerk of the orphans' court, of Philadelphia, said: "I do not hesitate to say, although this is not official, that I have advised my own clients, and such others as have asked me, that I believe the old marriage law to be in force, and that every one who gets married in Pennsylvania should have a license."

SENATOR DAVID B. HILL, of New York, says the Philadelphia Herald contends that the majority in the Senate has a right to rule and that if any regulation interferes with such ruling the body has the inalienable privilege under the United States Constitution to so change the rule that action may be taken. The ground taken is of the most logical and common sense character. Senator Hill does not believe in the right of the minority to legislate. Neither does anybody else but the stubborn heads who are talking all night and all day in the interest of silver. Yet, if silver purchasers are to continue under a compromise, no matter how short the time may be, the minority will have legislated by preventing the majority from voting and aborting its plans. The amendment to be agreed upon by Senator Hill is a step in the right direction. The Senate must not remain an impotent body subject to the dictation of the smallest cause of its members.

Washington Letter. WASHINGTON, D. C., October 20, 1893. A Democrat who has the future welfare and success of his party in view, regardless of his own personal opinion on the silver question, can find little that is pleasing in the controversies that have taken place this week between Democratic Senators who occupy opposite positions on the Voorhees bill. The language used by Democratic Senators towards each other was such as should not be used upon the floor of the Senate even towards political opponents, except under great provocation, and it certainly did not improve the chance either of passing the Voorhees bill as it is or of amending it. In fact, about the only thing accomplished by these displays of temper was to furnish the Republicans with a bundle of very stout clubs which they will not fail to use in the future upon Democratic heads. It will be a dear victory to either in this silver controversy if it be won by disrupting the Democratic party, thus proving the oft-iterated charge of the Republicans that the Democratic party could not control itself. The House committee on Public Lands which has been looking into the charges concerning the opening of the Cherokee strip will probably decide that there is no occasion for the Congressional investigation proposed by a resolution recently introduced in the House. The House is keeping up its reputation for epiphanies in the transaction of business. This week it passed the McCreary bill amending and modifying the Geary Chinese law and the Cox bill, providing that no national banking association shall make such a loan, stating the amount, its vice president, its directors, its cashier, or any of its clerks, tellers, book-keepers, agents, servants, or other persons in its employ, until the proposition to make such a loan, stating the amount, terms, and security offered, shall have been submitted in writing to a meeting of the board of directors or of the executive committee of the board, and accepted by a majority of the members of that present, constituting a quorum, and then not in excess of the amount now allowed by law. A bill similar to the last named was passed by the last House. The House also passed a bill repealing the law which requires applicants for bounty lands to prove loyalty in addition to proving themselves otherwise entitled to the lands. Fell Two Hundred Feet. CHICAGO, October 22.—Thirteen visitors to the fair fell in an elevator 200 feet from the landing under the great roof of the manufacturers' building last night. Their lives were saved by the brakes on the car which caught and held it thirty feet from the floor. Elevatorman Ben Sharp had just started from the landing way, twenty-eight feet from the roof, with a car crowded with passengers. For some reason he suddenly lost control of the car and it shot downward at a tremendous speed. The car is supposed to have an automatic check which prevents it from exceeding a certain rate of speed. The heavy load caused it to drop 200 feet before these checks worked. It was still a distance of thirty feet to the ground and with all the efforts of the elevatorman the car could not be moved. The score of people in the car were at first shocked by the sudden descent and it was not until the car stopped that they realized their danger. Over half the passengers were women and it was all the men in the car could do to quiet them. A number of Columbian guards saw the car drop and sent in a call to the fire department. A thirty-foot ladder was placed against the cage and Marshall O'Malley and Lieutenant Ryan assisted the passengers to descend. A Foul Murder. WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 22.—Samuel W. Dorsey, a prominent citizen of Washington, was foully murdered at 1 o'clock this morning by two unknown men near his home. The people of the town are greatly excited. Dorsey was a single man, 43 years of age, proprietor of a large barber shop and quite wealthy. He closed his shop at midnight, paid his employees and started home. On Chestnut street he was met by two men who deliberately fired a bullet into his head. Dorsey sank down on his knees with his back against a fence. In that position his body was found with a lighted cigar in his teeth. Dorsey's gold watch, a diamond stud and pocket book was taken. A large roll of money in an inside pocket was undisturbed. The police and county officers are searching for the assassins. Dorsey was a member of the city council. Murder at a Church Door. HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 22.—At Guyandotte, two miles east of this city, this afternoon, a murder occurred in front of the Methodist Episcopal Church while the congregation was assembling to attend services. Owen Pleasant and Milard Wellman, two negro barbers, who had formerly been partners in business, met on the street and began fighting with knives. Wellman cut Pleasant's body and ran with the latter in pursuit, using a pistol. In front of the church Wellman fell, a bullet having entered the back of his head, producing instant death. Pleasant was arrested. 3,218 Cattle Killed in a Day. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—The cattle killing record was broken yesterday at Armour's packing house in the east bottoms, where 3,218 cattle were slaughtered in 11 hours. There were 5,294 in Armour's yards yesterday morning and the slaughter of the day was completed by 11 o'clock. The slaughter began at 7 o'clock, was interrupted a half hour at noon and ended at 6 o'clock. The average was five per minute. A Mail Robber Caught. DOVERLEIGH, Pa., Oct. 20.—For a $12,000 robbery of a Doylestown National Bank mail pouch, containing drafts and checks for Philadelphia, William Johnson, alias "Lilac," colored, was arrested while hiding in Watson Mischener's hay-mow here. He had, on Tuesday evening, traced the valuable pouch from the post office to the train baggage car and watched his opportunity to steal it from the latter. The missing pouch was correctly reported lost from Philadelphia on Wednesday, and payment on the drafts and checks stopped. Johnson is an ex-convict, and has been loitering about Doylestown. He had hidden the rifled pouch in a corn shock nearby and returned the checks and drafts. Converted to Confession. ADDISON, N. Y., Oct. 24.—C. J. Starkweather, who keeps a repair shop here, became converted a few evenings ago at a Salvation Army meeting and publicly confessed to being a poker player and the keeper of a poker room. Yesterday he made another confession of drawing a fraudulent pension of $17 a month for six or seven years from the United States Government. He was not a soldier in the War of the Rebellion, but was in the army, his line of duty being fighting the Indians. While on picket duty he fired a bullet through his left wrist. This statement was freely made by him yesterday, and it is now learned that he has forwarded his papers to the pension department, with a confession to the facts. A Sensational Murder. PHILADELPHIA, October 25.—A sensational murder story was unearthed by the finding to-day of the body of a woman named Romele lying on a bed in the second story front room of the house number 2369 Philadelphia street, where she and her husband lived. The woman was shot through the head, and the police have information which leads them to believe that the husband who is under arrest, committed the deed. Two men who gave the information say they knew of the murder some hours before they informed the police, but were unable to communicate with the authorities for the reason that the guilty husband remained in their company and threatened to shoot them if they told of his crime. Lost a Hand and His Money. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 24.—Yesterday afternoon Richard Habel and C. E. Devour, well-known Sistersville oil men, came here to have a fractured leg of Habel's attended to. After putting Habel to bed Devour started out to see the town. He was found by the police at 3 o'clock this morning, wandering about with one hand cut off. Two men near the Ohio river trestle struck him with a sand bag and knocked him in front of a freight. Pushing him self out of the way of the train he lost his hand. He was robbed of $60 and a valuable gold watch. As he waited for his train at Wilkes barre, Cornelius O'Donnell, of Freeland, was fatally crushed by a passing locomotive.
