Court pages seem to have been forgiven a good deal of mischief, if we are to credit the annals of European courts. The thought suggests itself that the high dignitaries were at times weary of etiquette and magnificence, and were secretly grateful to an andacions youngster for creating a diver-

One day an important official of France, who went often to Versallles, was waiting in an antechamber for the coming of the king. He leaned back in his chair, and rested his head against the tapestry on the wall. A page slipped up behind him and with a great pin fastened the official's wig to the tapestry. Just then some one cried: "Here is the king!"

Up jumped the official, leaving the wig hanging to the tapestry, and confronting the king with bare head. He was not at all disconcerted, and said gravely: "I did not expect to have the honor of saluting your majesty to-day in the guise of a choir boy." The king repressed a smile, and at once recognized the incident as the work of the page. He insisted upon knowing who was the guilty one, and then ordered him not to appear before him again until he had begged the official's pardon.

The page retired after receiving his orders. At midnight be decided to exceute them. He galloped away on horseback to the residence of the offieigh, and awakened the household and the whole neighborhood, declaring that he had a message from the king. The official got out of bed and put on some of his court garb in order to receive the king's messenger properly.

At last the page was ceremoniously admitted to his presence. Then the boy said: "Sir. I am here at the king's command. I have come to beg your pardon for pinning your wig to the tapestry.

"Sir," replied the official, calmly, "you need not have made such haste. Then the page retired with as much bustle and ceremony. He appeared before the king the next morning, and was promptly asked if he had done as he was told. He answered that he had, as many witnesses could testify. When the king was told how the page had executed his orders, he shrugged his shoulders and said: "That is just like a page."-Youth's Companion.

How He Saved a Big Pile. Senator Cameron told the other day an anecdote to illustrate the high standard of political morality up in the Keystone state. There was an old Dutchman, a farmer theifty and prosperous, who had been carefully saving for many years. Finally he was elected to the legislature. It was a peculiarly profitable session. There were several railroad charters up for consideration. Hans served faithfully, never broke silence, and always voted: and after the legislature had adjourned surprised his friends at home by laying the foundation of a ten thousand dollar house, white there were rumors of a twenty thousand dollar bank de posit. "Have you had a legacy, Hans 6" asked a neighbor at last. "Oh, no," was the reply. "I have only been say ing." "But how could you manage to save thirty thousand dollars on a three months' salary of three dollars a day?" "Ah!" responded Hans, complacently "that was very easy. You see, my wife didn't keep no hired girl last winter." Boston Advertiser.

Moral Safety.

Deacon Lightfoot and Deacon Olmstead were brother officers in the same colored church in a Kentucky town and while the former was fond of slipping around a smokehouse in the night time, the latter had a hankering for elicken coops. One day they met on the street. "Look a heah, Brer Olmstead," said

Lightfoot, warningly, "you is got ter be mo' keerful how you fool 'round dem hen coops, you is.' Deacon Olmstead was greatly shoeked. "Whaffur you talk like dat ter me Brer Lightfoot," he responded. spec 'taint no wussen stealin' meat." "Huh," said the other; "you donn kno what you talkin' about. Ef you steal a chicken, de chicken's gwinter holler an' you is gwinter git shot an' bring reproach on de church, but who ebber heah a ham holler?" And with this knockout argument Brer Light foot passed on. -Detroit Free Press.

Her Hopeless Ignorance. The following conversation is an example of my wife's hopeless ignorance of salmon fishing. One afternoon while I was out several neighbor ladies chanced to call, and, as usual, over their tea, opened fire with the usual query as to my sport on the river. "Oh, yes," said her ladyship, in an abstracted manner, "my husband caught a salmon yesterday." "What size was it?" inquired one of the fair visitors.

"Eleven feet long," was the reply. There was, of course, much tittering

"Then it must have been eleven inches long," was the amended answer. Increased merriment ensued. "Well," said my wife, desperately "I know it was eleven something; perhaps it was eleven pounds."-Blackwood's Magazine.

DOINGS OF WOMEN.

MRS. JOHN G. CARLISLE is writing a cook book. Its references to cabinet pudding should be authentic. Mns. JEFF Davis spent most of the summer under the same roof with the widow of Gen. Grant and now has the widow of Gen. McClellan as her winter neighbor.

Miss Alice Flercher, the ethnologist who has been making a study of the Omaha and other Indian tribes, drew a salary of eight dollars a day as a special agent of the Indian bureau. MME. SCHLIEMANN, fulfilling a promise made to her husband, is continuing the excavations at Troy which made his name famous. She is personally superintending much of the work. SISTER MARIE AUGUSTINE, founder of the Little Sisters of the Poor, lately died in France. She was born in 1820, at Saint-Servan, and was known in the world by the name of Marie Jamet. MISS MIRIAM SELVER, a sister of the Franciscan order, is on her way from St. Louis to the Sandwich islands, where she will devote her life to nursing lepers. She is twenty-two years old and highly educated.

The Prayers of Ludians. Prayers are an important part of savage custom. The Society islanders prayed before almost every act of their lives. In Guinea a daily prayer is: "O God, belp us; we do not know whether we shall live tomorrow; we are in 'Thy hand." A Bushman says: "O Cahu, give us food; both hands full." Another tribe: "Give me today rice and yams, gold and aggree beads, slaves, riches and health; make me active and strong." But a savage in his prayers thinks neither of morality nor of a future state. Among the Cherokees, Aztees, Mayas and Peru-support of their husbands. BARONESS RAHDEN, whose husband was acquitted a few days ago by the French court at Rioni, France, of the charge of murder growing out of the killing of Lieut. Custinkio, who was enamored of the baroness, has been engaged by a variety theater in Berlin. MRS ROMNEY, an American, has invented a dinner pail for the use of workingmen, in which food can be kept hot for ten or twelve hours. ASTRONOMY.

A YEAR on Jupiter is equal to eleven years, ten months and seventeen days on our globe.

THE actual occupancy of Mars by a race superior to our own is said to be very probable. THE assayer who examined the aerolite that fell on the farm of Lawrence Freeman, near Bath, S. D., on the afternoon of August 29, 1892, reports that the principal minerals it contains are gold, silver, nickel and cobalt. Prof. Topp, of Amherst, it is annonneed, has begun preparations to view the total solar eclipse of August 9, 1896, from the island of Yezo, in the Japanese empire. He isn't going to let the eclipse surprise him unawares. THE observatory on the top of Mount Blane is an accomplished fact. The foundations imbedded in the ice are considered perfectly safe. It will be occupied continuously during the fine season and self-registering instruments will be left behind for the winter.
