By the Ald of His Faithful Dogs The Illicit Distiller Was Enabled for a Long

Time to Carry on His Ne-

farious Business. The most noted mountaineer in West Virginia, and perhaps in Kentucky and North Carolina-Jim Day-has at last been captured. The government officers have been trying to arrest Day for over fifteen years, but failed on every occasion. Day, who is a tall, museular, shrewd-looking fellow, has been running illicit stills for over fifteen years. During this time he had sometimes as many as a dozen stills running at one time. The stills were located in the depths of the primitive forests or in caves in the mountain sides, a long distance from roadways and trails. The stills were always located near some prominent height or at a point from which a guard or spyconstantly on the alert-could overlook all approaches and advise his companions of the vicinity of suspicious looking strangers. In fifteen years only two of Day's stills have been captured and destroyed. On each of these occasions Day and his men all made their escape. Time and again revenue officers have attempted to wavlay and ambush Day. They found roads and trails over which it was known he would be forced to travel and they then placed squads in ambush, but, according to the St. Louis Republic, although Day had been seen or traced along the road. he always slipped through their fingers without a setatch.

At last the secret of his success in evading the officers became known. Day had a number of thoroughbred dogs which he had trained to seent out revenue officers or strangers and to notify him of their presence long before they could come in sight. When traveling over the routes or trails leading to and from any of his stills two of Day's dogs always trotted along in front several hundred yards, taking opposite sides of the road. Two would fall back in the rear and one would advance like a scout on each side. In case of an ambuscade the dogs in front would scent the presence of the deputy marshals before they got within one hundred yards of them. They would then return quickly to their master and inform him by their actions of the presence of the enemy. Day would then take to the woods to the right or left, with a dog in advance, and pass around an ambuscade without being seen. In case pursuers should come up behind, Day's dogs, which had been trailing along, would quickly hear or scent them, and then would hurry forward to their master, who, knowing by their actions how close the enemy was, could easily evade them. With such guards it was almost useless for the officers to attempt to capture Day. They often gave up the search in disgust, to start out a month or two later reinvigorated and encouraged by rumors or reports of spies, to fail again and again. Day could be heard of in McDowell county one day, and the next some one from Taswell, in Virginia, fifty miles away, would report that he had been seen in that section. He proved to be an ignis fatuus to the officers, and although they could hear of half a dozen stills running in as many places in the mountains, the officers in the entire fifteen years were successful only in capturing two of his

THE CUP OF GOLD. A Beautiful Flower That Is the Floral

Strangers visiting California are attracted by the great splashes of gold that appear in the pasture lands and by the waysides says the London Il-Instrated News It is the eschedultain (esh-sholts-i-u), which is now the flower emblem of California. The appropriateness of this selection is seen in many ways. It is the wild wine goblet of the state, suggestive, in color, of the orange and the precions metal. The Spaniards, indeed, called it el oro de-copo-the cup of gold. In the month of October, 1816, the ship Rurick entered the bay of San Francisco. The naturalist Adalbert von Chamisso was on the Rurick, and named the poppy for his companion of the voyage, one Herr Eschscholtz. The latter may have been a good citizen, and his name may sound euphoni ous to his nation; but to the Anglo-Saxon the word is a mouthful.

Californians should be thankful. however, that the flower was not christened with his full name of Johannfriedricheschscholtzia. It will never be known how many California school children have barely escaped strangulation in attempting to pronounce the botanical name of the poppy. This flower has a wide distribution; it is found from Oregon to the central highlands of Mexico, from Nevada and Arizona to the islands of

He Was Willing to Play Dog But Wanted

A traveler now in town on a visit heard a new story about Mark Twair from an old Mississippi river pilot with whom Mr. Clemens once worked for awhile in a pilot house on that river, says the New York Sun. It seems that he came up in the pilot house earrying an enormous and expensive black Havana eigar which excited the envy of the muster pilot. "Where did you get that cigar, Sam?" the pilot asked. "A gentleman in the cabin gave it to me,' said the budding humorist. "Well, do you think you ought to keep that eigar and I ought to go without it?" the pilot asked.

Now, look here," said Mark Twain. "I know I am only your helper and I'm willing to play dog to you. You can throw sticks in the water and let me jump in after 'em. I'll do whatever you say, but"-and here he drawled in his peculiar way-"I do think I ought to have some perquisites."

RESTAURANTS in Third avenue and the Bowery have a conventional style of their own that few depart from. The red cherry table without cloth is a feature of most such places.

FREE lunch saloons find the demand for lunch greatly increased by the hard times. The increase in the case of the smaller saloons does not come from a sudden swelling of the classes that regularly live by following up lunch routes, but from decent poor mechanics temporarily idle. "In speaking of a flat that I was looking at the other day," said a flat hunter, "the janitor said: 'There's never been a death in the house since it was built.' This was something that I had never heard before, but there are doubtiess many persons to whom that would be a recommendation, either on sentimental grounds or as indicating the healthfulness of the location and of the building." Egg dealers must soon push the English language one step further.

The distinctions of eggs, fresh eggs and strictly fresh eggs, sometimes called "stric'lies," have become historic, but housewives have discovered this winter, perhaps as the result of hard times, that stric'lies are no longer to be trusted. Some of them, indeed, are little better than "fresh eggs. and others are neither more nor less than just "eggs."

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

THE Society of Friends recently sent a check for $8,930 to the Salvation Army for use in its social scheme. DURING the last four years the Christians of Berlin have given $3,500,000 toward the erection of new churches in the German capital.

THE most numerous body of religionists is that devoted to Buddhism, 420,-000,000. The number of Christians is estimated at 405,000,000.

In the islands of the sea there are 211 stations occupied by 190 missionaries. Twelve societies are represented. The converts number 100,000,

DURING the last year the Basle society, of Germany distributed more than 25,000 copies of the Holy Scriptures at an expense of $5,000. THE Church Missionary society of England last year had an income of £27,000 in excess of its expenditures, which amounted to $1,250,000. INDIA has eight Christian colleges and 26,000 schools and 3,000,000 pupils There are 18,000,000 girls of school age and only one in sixty attends school. CONTRIBUTIONS to all benevolent purposes, by Protestant Christians of the United States amount to about $85,000, 000 annually. Only one-seventh of this is given to foreign missions.

SUET PUDDING. One cup of suet chopped fine, one-half cup sugar, onehalf cup of molasses, one cup of raisins, three cups of flour, one teaspoon of soda, one-half teaspoon of salt; milk enough for a stiff batter. Steam one hour and a half.

SAUCE FOR THE PUDDING .- One-half pint of water heated to the boiling point. Thicken with flour to the consistency of a good gravy. Season with a good teaspoon of butter and any flavoring preferred, such as lemon, vanilla, nutmeg, etc. BUCKWHEAT CAKES. - The old-fashioned cakes our grandmother made were the best. Following is the recipe: To one quart of warm water add a yeast cake and a good heaping teaspoon of salt. Stir in buckwheat flour until you have a stiff batter. Set at night and keep in a warm place. In the morning add a teaspoon of soda; bake quick andserve hot.

BUTTERMILK CAKE. - Two cups of sugar, two of chopped raisins, two of buttermilk. one-half cup of shortening. four cups of flour, one teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg; two teaspoonfuls of soda; about two tablespoonfuls of molasses, with a little less of sugar, gives the cake a better color and flavor. If frosted with cream and confectioner's sugar well beaten, with cocoanut added, you have a cake "good enough for a king."-Ohio Farmer.

What Goes to Make Paper. Paper can be made out of almost anything that can be pounded to pulp. Over fifty kinds of bark are employed, while old sacking or bagging makes a good article. Paper is made out of banana skins, from bean stalks, peavines, cocoanut fiber, clover and timothy hay, straw, fresh-water weeds, sea weeds and more than one hundred different kinds of grass. Paper has been made from hair, fur and wool, from asbestos, which furnishes an article indestructible by fire; from hop plants, from husks of any and every kind of grain. Leaves make a good, strong paper, while the husks and stems of Indian corn have also been tried, and almost every kind of moss can be made into paper. There are patents for making paper from sawdust and shavings, from thistles and thistle-down, from tobacco stalks and tan bark. It is said that there are over two thousand patents in this country covering the manufacture of paper. No matter what the substance, the process is substantially the same; the material is ground to a pulp, then spread thinly over a frame and allowed to dry, the subsequent treatment depending on the kind of paper to be made. A Canine Crab Catcher.

A gentleman who lives on Chesapeake bay has an interesting dog who amuses himself in fishing for crabs. The Newfoundland is in the habit of wading about in shallow water, and when he finds a crab he prances around it until an opportunity presents itself, when he seizes his find and carries it to the beach. Then he plays with his eatch, as a cat tantalizes a mouse, until the crab is helplessly exhausted. The erabs often fight back to the best of their ability, and it is often difficult to say which has the tightest hold, dog or erab, for the latter fastens its claws in the dog's lip and struggles until killed.

A MUD VULUNIU The Natural Curiosity of the Island

Sumatra. There are many mud volcanoes a tered throughout the world, but the are few whose action is so regular, so characteristic as that of Dempe the island of Sumatra. This vole about ten thousand feet in height. visited by Henry O. Forbes a few ago, and is described in his "Wan ings in the Eastern Archibe After a breathless climb he had gain the rim of the crater, from which looked down some three hundred of precipitous rock to what seem white, polished mirror set in a cen basin. From this basin was slowly, ing a column of steam. All was quiet and placid, and I w down a little while to take in the tails of a scene so novel; a vast circu basin half a mile in diameter. rocky sides of sheer precipices playing at various places horiz strata; at the bottom of this am smaller basin, some two hundred in diameter, filled to within about it ty or forty feet of its rim with a sme ng substance, whose surface, like) nished silver, reflected the blue and every passing cloud.

We had sat thus for perhaps ten twelve minutes, when I noted that center of the white basin had be intensely black, and was scored dark streaks. This area graduall creased. By steady scrutiny with a glass, for it was difficult to make what was slowly and silently take place, I at last discovered that t blackness marked the sides of a che that had formed in what I now pe ceived the white burnished mirror be-a lake of seething mud.

The blackness increased. The la was being engulfed! A few mir later a dull, sullen roar was heard, I had just time to conjecture with myself whence it proceeded when whole lake heaved, and rose in the for some hundreds of feet, not as violently ejected, but with call jestic uphenval, and then fell back itself with an awesome roar, which ; verberated round and round the m caldron, and echoed from rocky wall rocky wall like the surge of an ang sea; and the immense volume of ster let loose from its prison house disc. pated itself into the air.

The wave circles died away on the margin of the lake, which resumed burnished face and again reflected t blue sky; and silence reigned again up til the geyser had gathered force for another expiration.

The roar of the coming explosing was so awesome that my porters wh had never been to the top before, looks the picture of terror, and when the lake rose, they took to their heels and fled in a body. Thus all day long the lake was swallowed up and vomited forth once every fifteen or twenty minutes. Thatis was not always so quiet even as now the stones on the Sawah and the scor on the sides of the cone testified. One in about every three years, the native told me, the crops of coffee bananas and rice were quite destroyed by "sulp rain," which covered everything for miles round the crater.

AVES OF THE COOK.

New York Society People Unable to Diss at Home on Sundays. Cooks have their rights as well as other people, and that is the one reason why the restaurants of New York an crowded every Sunday night by people who have numerous servants, including capable cooks. It was a custom for many years, nobody knows exactly why, says the New York Sun, to eat a heavy dinner in the middle of the day on Sunday. During the prevalence of this custom the cooks made it a point to take Sunday night off, and that point has now become a prerogative Men who dine six days in the week at seven are invariably overloaded and ancomfortable when they dine in the middle of the day on Sunday. The effort to have Sunday night dinner at seven o'clock has resulted in a flat and indubitable failure wherever attempte by householders, and so the knot has been cut by allowing the cook to have her regular Sunday night off, while the master of the house and his wife go to a restaurant and the children scurry about for themseles. If a stranger in New York is anxious to see the heavy weight financial commer cial, legal and other professional menof New York city at dinner with their wives be should visit Delmonico's, the Brunswick, the Savoy, Walderf or New Netherlands hotel any Sunday night at about seven o'clock. It is a curious phase of New York life. Famous men of every conceivable walk of life dim out at these places. The general public is familiar with their faces, but not with those of their wives. There's often a very strong contrast as for instance, a small, famous lawyer and his ponderous, domineering wife, wh tips the beam at two hundred and fifty

The following extract from the World Encompassed more especially bears upon the points covered in the inscription, giving an account of the service held and making record of the words of the very early American missionary prayer: "Our generall, with his companie, in the presence of those strangers, fell to prayers; and by signes, in lifting up our eyes and hands to Heaven. Inified unto them that that God, waom we did serve and whom they ought to worship, was above; beseeching God, if it werellis good pleasure, to open by some meaner their blinded eyes, that they might in due time be called to the knowledge Him, the true and ever-living God, and of Jesus Christ, whom He hath sentthe salvation of the Gentiles. In the time of which prayers, singing of Psalmes, and reading of certaine chapters of the Bible, they sate very attentively."

A physician of Ocosta, Wash., while botanizing in the woods near that place recently, stumbled across a big black bear, which got annoyed at his presence and chased him. The railroad was a few yards away, and the doctor took to the track and sprinted along it a few yards ahead of the beast, until a long trestle was reached. when the bear halted and squatted down to watch the doctor hop along the ties. When he was a third of the way across a freight train appeared at the further end. Out on a high trestle, with a bear waiting for him at one end and a freight train coming for that the situation was embarrassing-He dropped to a supporting beam. hung from the end of it while the train passed overhead, and then continued his way across the trestle and

-Two centuries ago there arose a fashion in Italy of posthumous histories; that is to say, an author would devote his life to the preparation of a historical work, leaving it to be published after his death by some nobleman of his acquaintance. Most were never published at all, though one. "Nero's History of Florence," first saw light one hundred and fifty years after the author's death.
