He brought with him a large basketful of the natural coke recently discovered at that place. This coke is 1894; found in the seam usually occupied by the Miller vein of coal, and is five feet thick, with a six-inch vein of Miller coal imnediately under it. The coke resembles anthracite in appearance, and its weight is above 50 per cent. greater than the Miller. Mr. Wilson says there are thousands of tons of coke in sight. The miners have already taken out 500 feet of it, and the vein shows no sign of diminishing. The company will probably erect a crusher at Altoona, and the coke will be disposed of in place of anthracite.-Johnstown Herald.
