FOND OF NURSING PEOPLE.

A Characteristic of Fierence Nightingale from Hor Earliest Youth.

Florence Nightingale, the worldfamous nurse, was born in Florence. Italy, in 1823, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press. Her father, William Edward Shore, of England, inherited the estate of his grand-uncle, Peter Nightingale, and, in pursuance of his will, assumed the name Nightingale. As the child of wealthy parents, Miss Nightingale was well educated. From early childhood the care of the sick was a favorite occupation of hers, and in 1849 she entered, as a voluntary nurse. a school of deaconesses to qualify herself to minister to the sick. In 1854, at the solicitation of Secretary of War Sidney Herbert, she went to Constantinople as the superintendent of a staff of nurses to care for the soldiers of Great Britain who were wounded in the Crimean war. By her rare executive ability and thorough knowledge of what was necessary she made the hospital, which was in a most deplorable state, a model in thoroughness and perfection of its appointments. Se immense were her labors that she frequently stood for twenty hours in succession giving directions. Notwithstanding this her pleasant smile and kind words to the sick made her almost idolized by the army. She returned to England September 8, 1856. Her services have secured her the sincerest gratitude of the English people and a world renown. Queen Victoria sent her a letter of thanks, with a superb jewel. A subscription of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was raised to found an institute for the training of nurses under her direction, and the soldiers of the army, by a penny contribution, raised a sum sufficient to erect a statue to her honor, which she refused to allow.

It was so dark that nothing could be seen, but instant action was necessary, as the lion might any moment force an entrance. "To prevent such a consummation," says Mr. Selous, "I pushed the muzzle of my rille between the poles, just where my ears told me my would-be interviewer was moving them, and, pointing it upward, holding the stock on the ground, pulled the trigger. An odd illustration once given Emerson, the philosopher, of the fact that the laws of disease are as beautiful as the laws of health is reported in his lecture on "The Comic.

"I was hastening," he says, "to visit an old and honored friend, who, I was informed, was in a dying condition when I met his physician, who accosted me in great spirits.

"'And how is my friend, the reverend doctor?' I inquired.

"'Oh, I saw him this morning. It the most correct apoplexy I have ever seen; face and hands livid, breathing stertorous, all the symptoms perfect. And he rubbed his hands with de light, for in the country we cannot find every day a case that agrees with the diagnosis of the books."

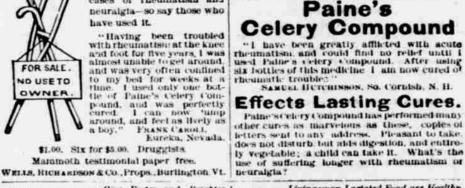

A Horse on the Briton.

An Englishman traveling in the outh some years ago was interested when a chance acquaintance at a hotel said to him: "I have some of Longfellow's hair." Then he drew from his pocket a little box and exhibited a quantity of coarse black hair. "Oh." said the Englishman, with surprise, "I should have thought it would have been white." "No," said the proud possessor of the relic. "It's all right. was in the stable myself yesterday and got this where he'd switched it off against the side of his stall." It was thus that the Englishman first learned that a famous horse had been named for the poet.

Looked Like a Natural Sequence.

A queer coincidence occurred in one of the city churches last Sunday. During the service one of the ushers notified a physician in the congregation that a call had been made for him in the vestibule. The doctor bounced out with hat and overcoat, and was soon on his way to see a patient. About ten minutes later the usher walked down the aisle until he came opposite a wellknown undertaker. There was a whispered word or two, and the undertaker hurried out. It was not the same case, but he followed the doctor, and a

"Seeing is Believing." And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good-these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either. the party mistook for a burial of the hatchet, and the wag of the crowe handed over his plug and invited them to 'chew the pipe of peace.' A few minutes afterward each man lounged off into the adjoining timber, going in opposite directions. Feeling nervous I struck out after them. I lost the track of the man I was following, and despaired of finding him until I heard a thud, like a man's skull being bat tered. I followed up the sound and was soon the spectator of a brutal duel on the old Indian plan. The men had drawn lots for first blow, and the loser had stood his ground while his adver sary tried to fell him with something very like a club. As provided in the code the men took turns in giving and receiving blows, and when I got up each had had two, if not three, chances to brain the other. Each had his face covered with blood and was beginning to be feeble. I stood for a moment overcome with horror, and then draw ing my revolver came forward and compelled the combatants to quit. Neither suffered permanently from his punishment, and the exponents of one of the most brikal dueling codes ever heard of lived to become fairly friendly with each other."

A ludicrous row over the separate coach law occurred on the Cincinnati Southern road recently. Sheriff Roberts, of Boone county, had a white and colored prisoner, destined for the penitentiary in this city, and took them both in the colored coach. The conductor, evidently not informed that nurses and prisoners are exempt from the provisions of the law, insisted that the sheriff should leave the colored car and take his white prisoner with him, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The sheriff refused to separate them. but took both to the white car. The conductor then told him he would have to place his colored prisoner in the proper car, and the sheriff replied he would not do it, and if put off would sue the company. The row became threatening, and the sheriff. in order to avoid trouble, went back into the colored car when the train stopped. and when again seen by the conductor got back into the white car. In this way they quarreled over the whole route to Georgetown, but the sheriff landed his prisoners in the penitentiary securely locked together.
