A Girl Assaulted in Blacklick.

On Monday evening about five o'clock a Miss Cora Bush, a daughter of Leander Bush, who resides in Blacklick township, in the neighborhood of the Twin Rocks. was on her way home she was met on the public road by an Italian laborer who struck her over the head with a club and knocked her down and then attempted to outrage her. Her screams brought assistance and the villain fled before accomplishing his vile purpose

The young lady, who is about 17 years of age, was taken to her home, and with the exception of being badly frightened and cut about the head, is not dangerously hurt. A number of neighbors started out to hunt the scoundrel on Monday night but were unsuccessful. On Tuesday Constable Simon Adams arrested an Italian named Ginseppa Graziano, who denied the charge, but pointed out another Italian.

Glovanni Tenza, as being the guilty party. Both were brought to town where an formation was made against, the latter before 'Sonire Jones, who will give him a hearing this evening at 8 o'clock. Both the parties arrested were placed in jail, the one to answer the charge and the other as a witness. Since the above was in type we learn that the hearing has been postponed on account of Miss Bush being unable to be present, her injuries being much more serious than at first supposed.

Communication. Carrolltown, Pa., Sept. 18, 1894. ED. FREEMAN.—Slander, whose edge sharper than the sword-whose tongue outruns the worms of the Nile-has invad ed the household of one of our most prom ment citizens, and supported by anony mons letters slipped under the door of his house and directed to a member of his family, has caused sorrow and perplexity the accusations made in the letter. The letter contains the most obscene and filther matter and is unfit for publication. The victim is our friend Mr. Julius Rager, and he and his estimable wife have caused th writer to publish this to still the for tongue and vile pen of the slanderer, who happens to be well known to the write and Mr. Rager, She, the slanderer among other accusations, says that Mr Rager is guilty of sporting two wome after the morning trains arrive, and will other than his wife and asserts in he adjourn in time for delegates to return anonymous letters that Mr. Rager stopped at L. A. Craver's hotel in Ebensburg dur the Ebensburg fair and asked for a root for himself and the women who are allege to have been with him for the night. The citizens of Loretto and vicinity Now, this and all other accusations are pare-faced, malicious and unmitigated lies as the appended denial of Mr. Craver him seif will show as to the room matter. Mr Rager is a man more sinned against than sinning, and although of a mild, gental and mirthful nature, will no longer suffer and scandalized by the slanderons talk and the peace of his household to be invaded onscene letters and insinuations of Mrs. - whose tongue is like the trail of a serpent-nothing but filth and slime. Mr. Rager gives her notice that if any more scandalous language or anonymous letters are sent by the party, exposure will surely folicw, and the good names be protected by the means furnished by the laws of this Commonwealth; for "he who take from me my good name robs me of that which not enriches him, and makes me poor in-A.
