FRIDAY. - - JANUARY 25, 1895.

AT McClain's Mill, Ark, several dwell ings were totally demolished by a cyclone and eleven persons injured, two of whom will die.

THE lower court at Washington has sustained the constitutionality of the income tax law, and an appeal has been taken to the supreme court of the United States. As that tribunal has sustained the principle of the law in former decisions, it will probably do the same, although some of the details of the law may be ruled out.

In the house at Harrisburg, on Wednesday Mr. Easton of Potter county introduced a bill to establish an additional hospital for the insane of the district comprising the counties of Potter, Tioga, Clinton, Lycoming, Clearfield, Jefferson, Center, Huntingdon, Blair, Cambria, Bedford, Somerset and Indiana, and appropriating $500,000, for the same.

THOMAS B. Reed is said to be discour aging, so far as possible, any general move on the part of the defeated Republican candidates contesting for seats. An election contest is almost invariably a boomerang-the unseated contestant is often returned by the people of his district by an increased majority. Mr Reed fears that the unseating of Democratic candidates miggt thus have a bad effect upon the presidential campaign of

On Wednesday United States Marshall Arnold took Eugene V. Debs and other directors of the A R. U. before Judge Grosscup in Chicago. All gave bail in the sum of $2,000 and were released from custody. They are now free on the charge for which they were convicted until April 1, as the supreme court will not begin the hearing of the points at issue, which will consume several days, until March 25. In the meantime their trial for conspiracy to obstruct interstate commerce and the passage of the mails will begin.

THE allegation of discontent is often made in speaking of the farmers. It would be absurd to deny that there is and the temporary success of populism in certain states is a proof of it. The farmer has been the victim of unwise dangered credit and depleted treasury. tariff legislation, and he has a right to complain when the sees that the man who sets up a little shed for the manuis of a hundred times more consequence in the world's economy.

introduced in the house at Washington a bill to incorporate the National Central Dallin, J. C. Caldwell, J. W. Reed and and equip a railway from a point on the New York city, to some point in San Francisco.

The road is to be constructed in the most improved manner and of the best materials in the art of railroad building. The capital stock of the company is to be $400,000,000. If the company so elects, the government is to guarantee the interest upon bonds sold to aid in the construction of the road.

THE main work of the legislators now says the Harrisburg Patriot, seems to be to dump all sorts of good, bad and indifferent bills into the hopper. The work of "obliging constituents" is going on. The pettifogger shapes his ideas into a measure and the member turns it into the legislative mill in the hope of some way getting grist that will be satisfactory to himself if to no one else.

Up to this time the legislature has been in the hands of the Republican bosses. They have set in motion the legislation they desire and they mean to see what they want and all they want goes through. The rest can take chances. If the bosses must and will get their own selfish legislation through will they not at least see that much or all of the other vicious legislation is sup-tensibly directed.

The present congress, says the Philadelphia Times, is utterly remiss in the performance of the plain duty to place our financial system on a sound basis and supply adequate revenues for the expenditures of the government. The Democrats, as the majority party, have not done so because they cannot; the Republicans, with 127 votes in the house, refuse to do so because they will

Both of the great parties are to day guilty of recklessly endangering the cre dit of the government and the prosperi ty of the country. It is well known that there are enough men of sound financial views in the two great parties of the ouse to unite on a financial policy that would be acceptable to the country, but the Democrats are hopelessly divided, as the Republicans would be if in power, and the Republicans oppose everything and propose nothing.

A financial bill has now been in the house for many weeks but the Republican leaders have as yet not proposed a single amendment or substitute, and have done nothing whatever but to oppose everything presented by the major ity. They are playing the demagogue, for all will appreciate that such conduct by any party in congress is neither patriotic nor statesmanlike.

Thomas B. Reed could in one day solve the financial problem if he would permit the honest men of his own party to unite with honest men in the Democratic party to pass the best financial bill that can be agreed upon. The votes are there to do it, the honesty of purpose is there, and it is hindered entirely by representative Reed who is the autocrat of the Republicans in congress, and has never permitted them to take any part whatever in framing a financial measure. It is idle to assume that the Republilans can escape responsibility for the failure of the present congress to enact proper financial legislation. True, the Democrats have a n ajority in the body, but it is known that a considerable proportion of that majority is unsound on finance, as are very many members of the Republican party. It is therefore impossible for honest and patriotic Democrats to enact any financial bill without the aid of honest and patriotic members of the Republican side.

Public sentiment should demand that this great question, that rises above all party considerations or interests, should be elevated above the plane of partisan discontent in the agricultural regions, disputes and that patriotism and states manship, regardless of party feeling. should come to the rescue of our en-

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18, 1895 .-While there is life in the fifty-third congress Democrats will not cease to hope for legislation in the line of currency reform. But candor compels the confes ion that there is nothing tangible in sight in either house or senate at this writing upon which to build hope. The situation is similar to a serious case of sickness in one's family. No matter how serious the doctor may look nor how low the patient may appear to be, we hope for a change for the better, and sometimes our hopes are realized, and sometimes, alas! they are not. Only time can tell how it will end with cur-

Senator Vest, when taunted by Republican senators because of the failure of the Democrats to agree upon a financial bill voiced the opinion of many Democrats when he said: "I have no anthority to speak for the President, but I most earnestly hope that if some definite action is not taken by this congress. the president will call an extra session as soon as the gavel falls at the close of this session." The Republicans make a pretense of being indifferent about an extra session, but in reality it is the differences which exist in their own par put off the time for action as long as Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, gave out a statement this week which should put an end to all the absurd talk about enmity between bimself and Secretary Carlisle He said: My relations with the secretary of the treasury both personal and official, are of the most cordial kind. Instead of there being any pur pose of mine to declare war against Mr. Carlisle or the administration, the contrary is true. My views on the silver questien are well understood, but there has never been any idea on my part of carrying those views to the extreme of making war on Mr. Carlisle, Mr. Cleveland, or any one else. Much less would I be willing to put in that attitude with respect to Secretary Carlisle. Our relations are pleasant and cordial, and will remain so. So far as I am concerned, am ready and willing to do anything I can, honorably and consistently, to up hold the treasury and the administration. Any statement attributing other motives to me, or placing a different ight upon the situation, is absolutely untrue and unauthorized by me. My personal attachment to Secretary Car liste should have been sufficient to have discounted all these silly rumors.
