The free silver fanatics, says the Philadelphia Times, have had the field for some years in this country without a well defined issue, and without organized opposition on the part of the friends of honest money. During the last few months the issue has become sharply defined, and although the organized movement for honest money is yet in its infancy, there is a visible ebb in the free silver craze, and it is likely to be impotent in both the Republican and Demo cratic national convention a year hence. The great strength of the free silver theory has been amongst the farmers of the country. They have been impoverished by the low price of wheat and other farm products, and they were appealed to their distress by the demagogle leaders of the free silver and cheap money theory promising them relief from their embarrassment by the multiplication of a degraded currency. They were told that silver and wheat had declined together, and the argument seemed plausible. But that argument has been utterly overthrown by facts and figures which the farmers cannot mis understand. Wheat has advanced from 55 cents to 85 cents per bushel during the last few months, while silver has not advanced a farthing. The farmers are thus taught by argus ment which cannot be gainsaid that silver and wheat are subject to the inexorable laws of supply and demand; that wheat commands low prices when there is overproduction, and high prices when the production does not exceed the demand. The same inexorable law applies to silver. Excessive overproduction reduced its price one half, and whether wheat shall be high or low, silver wil remain at a very low figure until the demand shall equal or exceed the produc-

The farmers and the workingmen of the country have generally come to understand that cheap money would not only be a calamity to the country, but a special misfortune to them. While the former could get $1 a bushel for wheat on the free silver theory he would be remired to pay $2 for everything that he nust buy where $1 would purchase the ame commodity now. The wage earner also understands that cheap money would not double his wages while it would diminish the purchasing power of his wages just one half. Thus the men most interested in honest money are now beginning to come to the front to defend it, and the ebb to the free silver craze is evident on every

Only such money can be called bonest money, and every nation that does not thus maintain its credit must be paralyzed in its industry, commerce and trade and be eliminated from the successful governments of the world.

Judging from the success, says the Cittsburg Post, that attended Senator Juay's one-day visit to the state capital n smashing the Magee Hastings Martin combine, the senator need hardly have cone to the trouble. He might have continued the use of the telephone in communicating his orders. The old apportionments, in defiance and contempt of the constitution, are to remain, simply because their remaining is a necessary part of the senator's plan of state control. He is not going to let such a little thing as having legislators comply with their sworn duty to the constitution stand in the way of his directorship and possibly handing it over to son "Dick" when the senior takes the Chiltern-Hundreds, as the elder Cameron transmitted power to son Don some 18 years ago. him, but she refused The Republican party of Pennsylvania would stand it.
