MORALS IN RUSSIAN ASIA. Mock Modesty of Natives Who Are Used to Shocking Sights.

The status of women, which is already falling in Russia, is even lower in that country under Russian control. A respectable lady there will not accept an invitation of a gentleman to any place of amusement...

A TREE SUNSTROKE. How a Tree Took an End to a Large Maple.

The editor of our Monthly tells of being summoned to hold an inquest over a dead sugar maple tree. It was supposed to have been destroyed by a leak in the city gas main...

Not a Good Lifeline.

It is not always easy to recognize the "gentle" and "ladies" of sculpture. No wonder the old lady in the following story...

A Wily Scotchman.

Was not this the retort courteous? It was the custom in Scotch parishes for the minister to bow to the laird's pew before beginning his discourse...

He Would Get It.

LOFTY AND LOWLY. A Story of Two Babies Which Brings Tears of Joy.

One of the women attendants out at the children's sanitarium on the Lincoln park lake shore tells a pretty story, says the Chicago Chronicle. "A woman who was sick enough here herself to be in a hospital came up here with her child. It was a tiny thing, and so weak that it could hardly cry...

A NICE AUDIENCE. It Was So Because It Was Compelled to Be.

Daniel Frisbee, once a newspaper man, now an actor, tells the San Francisco Call: At one place called West Union, in Iowa, we had the oddest experience I have yet met with. We played in a hall thirty feet underground that had formerly been a saloon...

A DOG'S QUEER TRICK. Evidence of Reasoning Power Shown in His Actions.

A dog and horse owned by Col. W. J. Hillings, of Oil City, Pa., says the Derrick of that city, afford the neighbors considerable amusement. The animals are companions and full of intelligence. The horse has learned to pick up and unroll sorts of knaps, and besides he can be fastened by a padlock...

CORNS AS WEATHER PROPHETS. Said to Be Infallible by a Man Who Uses Them.

"Do you know that the best weather predictor in the world," said a well-known physician to a Philadelphia Record reporter, "is a well-developed corn on any of the principal joints. I have one on the third toe of my right foot that informs me of a coming change in the weather far more reliably than the signal service man with his clouds and barometer."

NOT SAVED BY HIS RANK. German Emperor Was Hazed by the Student Body at Bonn.

Dr. W. Clark Robinson, of Edinburgh, was a classmate of Emperor William of Germany at Bonn, says the Boston Transcript. Telling of his first meeting with the emperor, he said: "It was in the fall of '78 when I first met the emperor. He was a student at Bonn. I shall never forget the amusing spectacle he presented..."

Frugal Business Feast.

The order has gone forth that the manners and customs of the Russian court are to be remodeled on the English system. The said manners and customs have always had more of barbaric splendor than of western refinement about them...

A Little Overboard.

W. S. Gilbert, the celebrated librettist, was lunching, not long ago, at a country hotel, when he found himself in company with three eccentric clergymen...

CHEE FOO, CHINA. The Oriental Watering Place Where the Recent Treaty Was Signed.

Chee-foo, where the treaty of peace was signed between China and Japan, and which also goes by the name of Yen-tai, is one of the best known resorts in the northeastern part of China. It is situated at the head of one of the bays of the Gulf of Petchili and is in the neighborhood of two of the most prosperous places from the recent Sino-Japanese war...

It is thickly populated, having one hundred and twenty thousand inhabitants, according to the official reports of 1891. In summer it is a fashionable watering place like Trouville and Brighton. It is very attractive, with its villas with vine-covered porches and classical architecture, some of which overlook Semaphore Point or dotting the plain. Beside the signal-tower a pretty pagoda rears its head, crowned by its cap with upturned wings...

WHAT IS ELECTRICITY? Some of the Various Theories on the Mysterious Current.

Well, what is it? It is scarcely possible to say. There are theories—many of them. It is evident, of course, that which we cannot take a part we cannot get a piece of it off and subject it to analysis; nor can we pour a little of it into a bottle for future study and contemplation. In like manner, its effects can be measured; its force, strength and quantity can now be calculated to a very nice degree. Still, to liken it to the wind, it is a stupendous power, and mightily overwhelming, as it were, without moving, two ways at once along all parts of its path; giving off a halo of magnetism at right angles to that path, and so on.

One of the oldest theories, perhaps, is the one that considers electricity a "condition" of atoms, brought about by chemical action, as in a battery cell, or by what is known as the Voltaic effect, or irritation of the magnetic needle, by the dynamo, and by other means, such as heat and friction.

What this condition is is beyond us; it may be violent motion, or it may be an equally violent motion, or it may be atoms; probably the arc light would prove it to be a vibration. But as no man has seen an atom at any time, not even with the most powerful microscope, it is impossible to observe its motion, in some form or other, is present, as heat is produced before burning, or destruction, takes place.

WHEN BIG SLEEVES GO. There Will Be Many Surprises When We See Our Friends Again.

Much interest attaches to the rumor which comes from London that the princess of Wales and her daughters have been visiting in Paris in the gowns with small sleeves and narrow skirts, remarks the San Francisco Argonaut.

This bit of intelligence does not necessarily clash with the rumor of the big sleeves and the letter A skirts, but it will tend to make prudent investors wary of locking up much capital in those varieties.

Of course the balloon sleeves must go presently. When fashionable modes began to put them on little boys' legs, nightgowns it became apparent that the taste for them had come to be an extravagant one.

But it will be a shock to miss them. Doubtless we will find our friends much changed when we get down to their real selves again. Some who have grown stout are not so stout as we expect, and others who were away in the hard times perhaps will shrink much more.

But let us have the facts at any cost, especially as there must be a radical change in the present sleeves and skirts to cut out anything conceivable and have enough left over to clothe a child.

Old-Time Football.

Football has never been a very gentlemanly game, to judge from what Master Stymie writes in his "History of the Game of Football," published in 1883. For as concerning football playing, I protest unto you, it may rather be called a friendly kind of fist-fight, or a play or rivalry between a blood and a nobility practice than a sport or pastime. For doth not every one eye in weight for his adversary, seeking to overthrow him and to pick him up by his nose, though he be as hard a stone as you that, by his means, sometimes their necks are broken, sometimes their backs, sometimes their legs, sometimes their arms, sometimes the part, that is, a matter of joy, sometimes another, sometimes the noses rush out with blood, sometimes their eyes start out.

When I was in India, said the man who had traveled, "the native thieves stole the sheets from under me while I slept and I never knew it." "Yes, and when I was in the northwest during the boom," said the man who will never admit that America can be outdone, "I had to sleep in a room where there were four real estate agents, and one of them stole a porous pot from my back without awakening me."
