While driving a heading he was caught under a fall of about seven tons of coal and his right leg fearfully crushed. He was taken to Altoona on Saturday evening but as above stated died soon after his arrival.

Father and Daughter Drowned. John A. Wolf, a resident of Smithton, Westmoreland county, and his six-yearold daughter were drowned on Wednesday of last week in attempting to cross the Yough river. The daughter attended a private school at West Newton. It was her father's custom to meet his daughter at Smithton station and take her home, the other side of the Yough river, and when it was low he avoided a roundabout way by fording the stream at the station. Wednesday evening Mr. Woolf met his little girl as usual, and, having a horse and nggy, decided to ford the river on his way home. In midstream the horse lost its footing, and the buggy was overturned. Nothing more was seen of the father or child by those who witnessed the accident. The horse's body was washed ashore just above West Newton on Thursday.

refuse to haul more than has been allotted.

Besides adhering to the amount of ton-below a certain price and as every operator signified their consent to abide by this,

there will be very little chance for the cut-
