mittee in convention assembled, on this the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the birth of the great champion and expounder of the principles of civil and religious liberty-Thomas Jefferson-rereligious liberty—Thomas Jefferson—renews its faith in those infallible doctrines taught by him for the perpetuation of the priceless inheritance committed to our care by the fathers of the republic. It was a mighty work to achieve the independence of our glorious country, and to establish a safe and stable form of government for the preservation of the rights of the people which had been won at such enormous expenditure of blood and treasure.

It is a work no less difficult to preserve in its pristine integrity the form of government so wise'y devised by patriotic hands, Designing men, individually and in combinations, since the very foundation of our government have sought, and to-day with more ingennity and persistence than ever before are seeking to use the machinery of the government for the furtherance of projects intended only for the gratification of their ambition and avarice. Alvin Evans, Esq., was made chairman, and after making a statement of the object and purposes of the meeting, was followed by Colenel S. W. Davis and others, who gave their views on the object of the meeting.

On motion a committee of five was appointed by the chairman, consisting of Colonel S. W. Davis, William Davis, Esq., which can be best summed up in law and the construction of the government from being the insurument by which all persons of Ebensburg and country people at at large that of Ebensburg and country people at at large that on addition are protected in their inalienable rights, leaving them free to seek their own happiness whenever or in whatever way they see fit so long as they interfere not with the equal rights of others, is the great evil to be met and guarded against at present and in the future. We believe that this evil can be successfully combatted only by strict adherence to the enduring principles of the great founder of the Democratic party, which can be best summed up in Colonel S. W. The president of the United States should be a careful and judicious man, broad-minded and courageous; Goyernor Pattison posses all the qualities in an eminent degree. We desire our representative in the national Democratic convention to vote for and use all honorable means to secure his nomination, and instruct the delegates this day elected to the Democratic state convention to use all proper means to have the delegates to the national convention chosen at Allentown instructed to vote for Pattison at Chicago.

We deplore the abuses that have crept into our state and municipal governments, chiefly on account of the free grants and franchises, which, deriving their existence and value from the public, should be subject to public control, and should return to the public, over and above their running expenses and a reasonable interest on the actual capital invested, all surplus
