DEPOTS CLOGGED WITH ARRIVALS.

Prospective Cabinet Officers, Governors and Men of Titles, Past and Present, Mingle In the Crowds-Major McKinley Dined With the Clevelands.

WASHINGTON, March 3.-The national capital shelters the outging and incoming presidents and vice presidents and preparations for the grand ceremonies marking the change of administration go on with feverish haste and bustle. Governors, generals and men with one title or another, past or present, rontinue to arrive with each train so that it is no longer a risk to address with some title almost any one who may be met about the hotels or public offices. Of the prospective new cabinet there are in the city Messrs. Sherman, Gage, Alger, Gary, Wilson and McKenna and a possible cabinet officer in Colonel J. J. McCook of New York. Of the governors of states there are already here Governors Black of New York, Tanner of Illinois, Grout of Vermont, Lowndes of Maryland, Scofield of Wisconsin, Hastings of Pennsylvania, Griggs of New Jersey, Bushnell of Ohio, Drake of Iowa and Pingree of Michigan. Other arrivals of note include Senator-elect Foraker of Ohio, H. Clay Evans of Tennessee and Colonel A. E. Buck of Georgia.

The presence of the president-elect and such a large proportion of public men of influence sufficient to affect the formation of the new cabinet has started a flood of gossip concerning the mem-bers of President McKinley's official family, but through all the fog of guesswork and speculation the fact shows clearly that the cabinet is still uncompleted, and for precisely the same reason that it has been known to be for about a week, namely, that the president-elect desires to honor New York with a place, and that a man has not yet been found acceptable at once to the leaders in the Empire state politics and willing to take the position which the cabinet slate as arranged marks as his

Senator-elect Piatt saw Mr. McKinley, but the conference was indecisive. One interesting suggestion arising out of the cabinet gossip was an intimation that the senate might adjourn over from tomorrow until the following week. The significance of the intimation lay in the fact that there had been canvassed the possibility that McKinley's cabinet would not be ready for announcement on Friday, and that therefore, no occasion would arise for a session to confirm the successors of the present cabinet. There have been delayed cabinet announcements in the past and at such times the outgoing officers out of courtesy have held onto their places until such time as it was the pleasure of the chief executive to relieve them, only routine business, of course, being attended to and matters of policy deferred. Inquiry at the senate on the matter of adjournment was answered by the statement that it would be as President McKinley might

The incoming of so many visitors of note also started the social activities of the town and there were innumerable dinners and receptions in the fashionable parts of the city in honor of inaugural sojourners.

Grand Marshal Porter kept hard at work at his quarters arranging for the big parade tomorrow. A rough total of the number of regular and militia soldiers and sailers who will be in line shows an aggregate of eleven or twelve thousand. The escort of Presidentelect McKinley, when in accordance with custom he rides down the avenue to the capitol to take the oath of office. will number about 5,000. The civic organizations vary so greatly in strength that it has been found absolutely impossible to make an exact statement of the number of men they will have in line, but it is estimated at about 12,000. Supplemental orders issued by Gen-Perter announced that Captain James H. Sands, of the Columbia, will command the battalion of 500 United States seamen who will represent the navy in the parade

Crack marching bodies ambitious to display their tactical skill in the parade before the largest audience they ever have faced, will find pigeon wings and other fancy manouevres barred. Gen. Porter directed in official orders that commanders be careful to keep their organizations in the middle of the street and prevent obliquing at any point in the line of march. On a past occasion the procession was stopped for about ten minutes while a crack flambeau club performed evolutions that brought down the crowd and likewise an aide from the commanding officer.

The occupants of the reviewing stand and vicinity doubtless will rejoice in the order that "Hail to the Chief" shall be performed by no band except that at the head of the column. Several hundred bands, it may be stated, will be in line. Another direction to the bandleaders is that in the civic organizations, where they will be unusually thick, bands following each other in column shall play alternately.

The depots have been clogged with the rush of incomers and there has been a constant succession of loaded trains bearing individuals, military bodies and clubs. The most noteworthy of these arrivals was the crack cavalry company of Cleveland, which will form the principal escort to the president, Troop A, of the Ohio na-tional guard. They have a complete new uniform and outfit for the occasion and mounted on the 80 coal-black chargers form the officers and men and two snow-white horses for the trumpeteers, expect to make a fine showing. Their mounts were carefully selected for the occasion and brought on. The men are in command of Captain Russell Burdick.

Arrangements have been perfected by which each important stage in the outdoor ceremonials will be announced by the booming of cannon. A nationa salute of 21 guns will be fired when President Cleveland leaves the White House in company with Mr. McKinley for the capitol, and another salute of 21 guns will announce that they have entered the capitol. One gun will be fired when Mr. McKinley takes the oath of office, a national salute of 21 guns at the conclusion of the inaugural address when President McKinley and Mr. Cleveland begin the return march to the White House, and the same number of guns when, the tour made, President McKinley enters the White House or the reviewing stand. Locally the all-important question now is the weather and of that the weather sharps fight shy and ask time for mature deliberation and the further development of meteorological facts before hazarding an opinion. One thing they will announce and that is that the temperature will be entirely comfort-Snow is out of the question. Whether it will rain or not is an open question. There is a wet area out west and gathering showers in the south, ing cloudiness around the District of Columbia and a growing haze which it takes longer each morning for the sun to dissipate, there is a persistent high barometer that brings clear skies long before noon. On the whole the indications favor showery weather and possibly rain just before or just after inauguration day, with a prospect that that day itself may escape and indeed that the showers may be light or forced in another direction.

President Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland last night entertained at dinner President-elect McKinley. The invitation, which while not a novelty, is not always usual to a change of administra-

LEGIS_ATO RE TING AGAIN. Dr. Swallow Re sed . Testify Before the Fi Investigators.

HARRISBURG, March 3.—The legisla ture has adjourned over inauguration week until Monday evening. It was agreed among the leaders that the house and senate from that time on will get down to business. The joint committee of the house and senate appointed to investigate the cause of the fire at the capitol has held another session. The meeting was held in Senator McCarrell's law office, with Chairman Gibson presiding. Dr. Swallow, who made the charges against the state officials, was subportaged and was present. When the meeting was called to order Dr. Swallow asked the privilege to open it with prayer. This was granted, and he started off his prayer by saying that the committee was making history and asking that the Lord in his wisdom would preside over and direct the committee in its actions. After prayer the reverend doctor was called to the stand and asked to testify. This he refused to do. He said there were numerous libel suits in which he was made defendant, and for that reason he would not testify. After prayer the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with. The following bills were then read in place and presented:

By Thomas, to further restrain and regulate the sale of vinous, spirituous, malt and brewed liquors by prohibiting the same person from being interested directly or indirectly in both the business of manufacturing, distilling, brewing, bottling or wholesaling of said liquors and in the sale thereof at retail.

By Gibson, to provide for the appointment of a building commission to erect a fireproof capitol building for the state legislature, the department of public instruction and other state officials, By Snyder, an act requiring railroads, canal and telegraph companies to file reports with the auditor general. The calendar was then taken up, and about 30 bills on third reading were considered. A number of them were of minor importance and passed without discussion. The anti-treating bill was called up and was laid over. After this was done, on motion of Senator Grady, the bill was referred back to the committee on Senator Grady's statement that it was unconstitutional. The bill providing that all candidates in congressional, judicial and legislative districts shall be nominated by ballot was defeated by a vote of 18 to 14. Senator Grady then called up his bill, entitled, "an act to exempt from taxation public property for public purposes and places of religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit, and institutions of purely public charity." Senator Flinn made a vigorous fight against the bill. After Mr. Flinn finished Mr. Grady said he was willing to have the bill lie over for a week or so, and meantime he was willing to amend it in any manner that would be satisfactory all around. Among other acts passed on third reading was one that gives a married woman living separate and apart from her husband authority to convey and encumber real estate without the joiner

Senator Gobin presented a resolution fixing next Tuesday as the time for taking up the civil service bill on second of her husband.

Senator Thomas presented a bill fixing the salaries of deputy sheriffs in all counties of 500,000 and over. The bill rides that the salaries of the deputie who execute processes shall be $2,500. The governor notified the senate of the appointment of Benjamin F. Smith as coroner of Crawford county, and L. M. Williams to be justice of the peace at Sharon. The senate adjourned to meet Monday evening. Bills were read in place as follows in the house:

By Muchlbronner, appropriating $3,000 to the temporary home for children in Allegheny. By Moore, a bill to prevent the attendance of all children under 16 years at any public theater unless accompanied by a parent or other suitable By Marshall, appropriating $50,000 to aid in the establishment of a free

Inauguration Visitors Entertained by the Senate. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The senate had its share of inauguration crowds and they were compensated by something more than routine procedure of appropriation bills. The bill for an international monetary conference was taken up and after two hours of animated debate the house amendments were agreed to without the formality of a yea and nay vote. This is the final legislative stage of the bill and it now goes to the president the bill brought out earnest speeches from the silver Republican senators and frequent reference to the break at St. Louis convention. Senator Dubois warned his former Republican associates that the silver Republicans had thrown off their old connections for good. Senator Teller referred to the choice of Mr. Sherman as secretary of state and Mr. Gage as secretary of the treasury as indicating that the coming administration would not be in sympathy with an international monetary conference or agreement. The fortification appropriation bill Senator Quay stated that several

Refused to Sign the New Immigration Law.

HE CRITICIZES THE MEASURE.

Calls It a Radical Departure From Our Past Policy Relating to Immigration. Especially Dislikes the Educational Test and the Clause Affecting Canadians.

Washington, March 3.-The president has sent to the house of representatives a message vetoing the immigration bill in which he says:

"By the first section of this bill it is proposed to amend section 1 of the act of March 3, 1891, relating to immigration, by adding to the classes of aliens thereby excluded from admission to the United States: All persons physically capable and over 16 years of age who cannot read and write the English language or some other language (parents over 50 years old being excluded from its provisions,

"A radical departure from our national policy relating to immigration is here presented. Heretofore we have welcomed all who came to us from other lands except those whose moral or physical condition or history threatened danger to our national welfare and safety.

The president then refers to our present growth and sturdy people as proof that our liberal immigration laws have been a good thing for the country. He declares that the present condi-tions—so many people being unemployed-as not due to the country being overcrowded, but to a general stagnation of business. Says he: "With the advent of settled and wholesome financial and economic governmental policies and a consequent encouragement to the activity of capital, the misfortunes of unemployed labor should to a great extent at least be remedied.'

Regarding the educational test he says: "The best reason that could be given for this radical restriction of immigration is the necessity of protecting our population against degeneration and saving our national peace and quiet from imported turbulence and disorder. "I cannot believe that we would be protected against these evils by limiting immigration to those who can read and write in any language 25 words of our constitution. In my opinion it is infinitely more safe to admit 100,000 immigrants, who, though unable to read and write, seek among us only a home and opportunity to work, than to admit one of those unruly agitators and enemies of governmental control who cannot only read and write, but delights in arousing by inflamatory speech the illiterate and peacefully inclined to discontent and tumult. Violence and disorder do not originate with illiterate laborers. They are rather the victims of the educated agitator. "A parent, grandparent, wife or minor child of a qualified immigrant, though unable to read and write, may accompany the immigrant or be sent for to join his family provided the immigrant is capable of supporting such relative. These exceptions to the general rule of exclusion contained in the bill were made to prevent the separation of families, and yet neither In order that relatives who are provided for may be reunited, those still in foreign lands must be sent for to join the immigrant here.

"A husband who can read and write and who determines to abandon his illiterate wife abroad will find here under this law an absolutely safe retreat. The illiterate relatives mentioned migrant must be capable of supporting them when they arrive."

The president says that often the illiterate relative is the one who is wellto-do and would support his better educated relation and should not be barred The president further says: "The prohibition against the employment of aliens upon any public works of the United States is in line with other legislation of a like character. It is quite a different thing, however, to declare it a crime for an alien to comregularly and habitually into the United States for the purpose of obtaining work from private parties, if such alien returns from time to time to a foreign country, and to constitute any employ ment of such alien a criminal offense. "When we consider these provisions of the bill in connection with our long northern frontier and the boundaries of several of our states and territories often but an imaginary line seperating them from the British dominions, and recall the friendly intercourse between the people who are neighbors on either side, the provisions of this bill affecting them must be regarded as illiberal, narrow and un-American. "The residents of these states and territories have separate and special interests, which in many cases make an interchange of labor between their people and their alien labors most important, frequently with the advantage largely in favor of our citizens. Such unfriendly legislation as is proposed could hardly fail to provoke retaliatory measures to the injury to many of our citizens who now have employment on adjoining foreign soil."

Its performance, however, broke all its own records. Taking out time for stops, the total run of 231 miles from New York to Washington was made in 235 minutes. The trip was without incident save that the people crowded the stations along the route over the Jersey Central, Reading and Baltimore and Ohio and cheered the frain as it passed and flocked about it when it stopped. No speeches were made, but at Philadelphia the party went to the rear platform of the train and were introduced one by one to the crowd in waiting. After leaving Philadelphia the party sat down to a beautiful luncheon, which was not completed when the train reached Washington.
