... Prefer Pennsylvania.

On Thursday of last week the Pittsburg Times had the following: Nathaniel Collier, his wife and two sons, John and James, formerly residents of Bellwood. Blair county, but later of Devils Lake, N. D., were passengers east last night over the Pennsylvania railroad, bound for Kittanning Point. Mr. Collier said he had been lured west several years ago by the glowing accounts he had read of easy farmng west of the Mississippi, and took np a parter section near Devil's Lake. Things went smoothly until a blizzard struck his neighborhood, and he at once saw that country as well as in the east. By stickog to it and plenty of hard work, he and his boys improved his farm and had be ome somewhat reconciled to blizzards, intil the past winter, when the snow fell n October 28th and remained with them until they left. During the winter they ost 187 head of cattle and all their small stock. During the past month a man came along who who wanted a cheap farm and the Colliers took him in. They say the happiest moment of their lives was when they took the last look at the Devil's Lake farm and turned their faces towards their old buck wheat farm in the Allegheny
