Dr. Stenhouse first introduced this instrument to the world. Its object is to prevent the access of the noxious effluvia of cholera, typhus, yellow fever, etc., to the lungs in respiration. It covers the nose and mouth, and consists of a layer of coarsely powdered charcoal, onefourth of an inch thick, between two sheet of silvered wire gauze, covered with thin woolen cloth. The frame is made of thin sheet copper, while the edges are made of lead so as to fit the lower part of the face, which is moreover protected against the pressure of the metal by the padding and velvet, lining of the instruair-filter, and protects against infectious
