CORE PLANTING.

From a seasonable article in the Farm and Fireside, on "The Corn Crop and its Cultivation," we make the following interesting extract. After remarking that in planting corn, it should be covered "evenly and not too deep," the writer goes on to say:

Many are of the opinion that it makes but little difference in the general result, whether the corn is one or three inches planted half an inen deeper than the pre-ceding one, and the last one was put in six inches deep. The last five rows came through in nine and one quarter, ten and one half, eleven and three quarters, twelve and one quarter and thirteen days, respectively. That planted six inches deep came up very pale and unhealthy, and after lingering three days, died. Many will no doubt think that after the point of the sprout has reached a distance of one and five-eighth inches of the old bonainon with a number of the sprain it commences to form the first fruit; and experiment will demonstrate that if this point is more than half an inch below the settled surface, the stalk will send out a new set of roots from if; the same experiment will demonstrate that while these new roots are being formed, which will generally be about the time the first two leaves are fairly formed, the plant, as far as perceptable growth is concerned, will remain attornary for from one to ten days, when it will again grow as usual, but will to be expected by the settled surface, the kinwa and other tribes of Indians on the plains. My little daughter can take the hen upon her knees and pat her on the back and say "sing, Betsy," (for that is her name,) and she will begin to sing as requested. She will then say "sing loud, Betsy," and she will then sing at the very top of her voice, which is very loud, for she has an excellent pair of lungs. She will say, "sing soft, Betsy," and she will change from the loud lone to a very soft one. And to cap the climax, in the way of obeying and pleasing the children, my little nicee put Betsy in a chair the other of the loud say that the party all mays contained the climax of the loudesty and began to pat her on the back, and that it only required the party. saying at the same time, "lay me an egg, Betsy." Betsy sang a very short, soft song, and then stood up in the chair, and to the great delight of the children, there lay in the chair an egg. She will follow my wife all over the house, yard, and garden, just like a pet dog, and will sing or not, as she is directed to do.

CORRUPTION IN OUR LEGISLATIVE

Never in the history of any country were legislative bodies so corrupe and venal as they are in the United States to-day. Since the advent of the Radicals to power all sense of public honesty seems to have been lost. In the lower House of Congress, in the Senate, in each branch of the different Northern State legislatures, everywhere in short, brithern and constitutions.

State legislatures, everywhere in short, bribery and corruption have come to be the order of the day. So common has it grown to be that it is regarded as a smatter of course. People have censed to wonder at it; and by the re-election of men known to be dishonest and mercenary have seemed to sanction it.

Radical newspapers admit that members of Congress belonging to their party are perfectly venal; they charge their own men in the United States Senate with being corrupt and mercenary; and acknowledge that the State Legislatures which have been under their control have disgraced the several States in have disgraced the several States in which they have been assembled. How completely retten must a party be when it is compelled to make such an exhibi-tion of its corruption.

It cannot be long before the people will have their eyes opened. They can-not and will not sustain such a debauch.

UNDERDRAINING LAND.—Experiments in underdraining land were made in Scotland last year for the purpose of determing the effect on the temperature of the soil, compared with that in the same vicinity which was not drained. The result was that the draining raised the temperature 1.5 degrees, equal to a removal of the land from one hundred to one hundred and fitty miles South. This is an important consideration connected rake heart and courage. The monstrous organization that has so tyrannized over the country is falling to pieces, and its baleful star will go down the political horizon as rapidly as it rose. Again, w repeat, the emigration into the Demoeratic party has commenced, and is pro-ceeding at a most gratifying rate.—Cin-
