NEW FIRM.

AT THE OLD STAND. [ESTABLISHED IN 1817.]

I HAVE associated with me, in business, my son, John F. McCreary, under the firm and sayle of D. McCreary & Son, and I desire to say to my old friends and the public generally that since the war, the manufacture of Suddles, Harness, Collars, &c., has been revived at the old established and well known standon Baltimore street, one sampre south of the Court House, Gettysburg, Pa.

Haveing had an experience of 40 years in this establishment, I feel assured, that, with renewed attention to business, we can still further merit and receive a full share of public patromage.

PLANTING ORCHARDS AND PRUIT GARDENS.

The increasing demand for every kind of fruit is encouraging many persons to lay out and plant new orchards and fruit garden. In the vicinity of large cities the raising of small truits has been found very profitable, as berries of all kinds have been in great demand for the last few years, and as raspherries, blackberries, gooseberries, currants, etc., come into bearing in a very short time after planting, there can be no objection on account of the length of time that these fruits take before they make any return for the outlay.

Persons who plant orchards and fruit gardens now, have many advantages which the pioneers of horticulture were not favored with. The experience of several years has pointed out the varieties of fruit best suited to various localities, and improved varieties have been introduced which are greatly superior to

We sometimes hear a man object to planting orchards or gardens because the prime of his life is past, and he thinks he may not live to eat the fruit of his la-bor. The rapidity with which currants, gooseberries, raspberries, grape vines and dwarf pears come into bearing should completely upset these objections. The strawberry, raspberry and blackberry yield some fruit the first year after being planted, and a full crop the second year. The Concord grape vine bears well the third year, and dwarf pears sometimes bear a fair crop the fourth year from planting. It is a good plan to plant standard Bartletts, Seckels and Louise Bonne de Jerseys, among the dwarf pears, as they will be about coming into bearing when the dwarf varieties have declined.—Western Rural.

BREEDING SOWS.

Every farmer is aware of the great lia bility to loss in getting a litter of pigs through the first two weeks of their lives. The sow not unfrequently devours them as soon as dropped, or if not, they are more or less liable to be killed by the mother lying down, before the little grunters have acquired sense or strength enough to avoid the danger. The Agricultural Review gives some sensible advice in regard to the management of breeders, from which we extract the following; suggesting further that the liter should, after two or three weeks, be without ouestioning, asked:

on his place. Said Mr. Sayre:

"Very well, go and buy four or five somewhat more than the five billon pine thouth and pigs right, away, and put them on the farm."

The men, accustomed to obey, and that without ouestioning, asked: allowed considerable liberty. It does itis to be had anywhere. No humbug in what we to keep them thriving, yet not sufficient to have a hand the very best and most durable to fatten. It is well to give them charcoal occasionally and a trifle of sulphur. The slops of the house are good feed.

All this tends to keep the appetite in a healthy state, and to destroy the tenden-cy of the swine to devour their young. 49TH YEAR.—NO. 44.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT.

There was a fine old General once. who, having spent most of his life in the field of Mars, knew very little about the camp of Cupid. He was one of those rough and honest spirits often met with in his gallant profession, innocent as an in an garant profession, runocent as an infant of almost excrything save high integrity and indomitable bravery. He was nearly fifty years old, and his talls were over, when master Dan made him acquainted with a widow Wadman, in whose eyes he began to detect some Here was the result of leisure.

At length, however, the blunt honesty of his disposition rose appermost among his conflict plans, and his course was chosen. At school he had once studied "Othello's Defense," to recite at an exhibition but made a failure; he recollected that there was seemable. ed that there was something in this de-fence to recite very much like what he wanted to say. He got the book im-mediately, found the passage, clapped on his but with a determined air, and posted off to the widow Wadman's, with Shakespeare under his arm.

"Madame," said General Uncle Toby, opening the book at the marked place, with the solemnity of a special pleading at the bar—"Madame"—
"Rude am I in my speech,
And little blessed with the set phrase of peace; for since these arms of mine had seven years buth

pith
Till now some nine moons wasted, they have nsed
Their dearest action in the tented field;
And little of the great world I can speak,
And therefore—
And therefore—

Here the general closed the book, wiped his forehead, looked up at the ceiling, and said with a spasmodic grasp. "I want to get married!"

The widow laughed for ten minutes by the watch before she could utter a syllable, and then she said with precious tears of humor rolling down her good natured cheeks, "And who is it you want to marry, general?"
"You" said Unde Toby, flourishing his sword arm in the air, and assuming a military attitude of defiance, as if he expected an assault from the widow immediately.

"Will you kill me if I marry you! said the widow, with a merry twinkle in her eye.

"No, madame," replied Uncle Toby, in a most serious and deprecating tone, as if to assure her that such an idea had never entered his head.
"Well then, I guess I'll marry you," said the widow. "Thank you, ma'am," said Uncle Toby,

"but one thing I am bound to tell you— I wear a wig."

The widow started, remained silent a moment and then went into a longer, louder and merrier laugh than she had indulged in before, at the end of which she drew her seat nearer the general, gravely laid her hand on his head, gently lifted his wig off and placed it on the table. General Uncle Toby had never known fear in hot battle, but he now felt a decided inclination to run away. The widow laughed again, as though she widow laughed again, as though she would never stop, and the general was about to put his hat upon his denuded head and bolt, when the facetious lady placed her hand upon his arm and detained him. She then raised her hand upon his arm and detained him. She then raised her hand to her own head with a rapid manceuver and with her finger pulled off her whole head of fine glossy hair, and placing it upon the table by the side of the general's remained scated with ludicrous gravity in front of her accepted lover, quite bald!

As may be expected, Uncle Toby now soon laughed along with the widow, and they grew so merry over the sifair that the maid servant peeped through the reckees and gairy which should lead als the maid servant peeped through the key-hole at the noise, and saw the old couple dancing a jig and bobbing their baid pates at each other like a pair of Chinese mandarlans. A PORCINE JOKE.

A good story is told of a Mr. Bayre, of Lexington, Ky.:
Mr. Sayre lisps a little, and a good joke is told of him, the better for its truth. Some years since, an overseer of one of his farms told him he needed some hogs on his place. Said Mr. Sayre:
"Very well, go and buy four or five

The overseer went his way, and in two weeks returned, when the following conversation took place: "Well, Mr. Sayre, I can't get that many pigs-I have ridden all over the counry, all about, and can buy but between ight and nine hundred."

Eight or nine hundred what?" "Eight or nine hundred pigs."

THAT SEVENTH RESOLETION." The seventh resolution adopted by the Republican State Convention, which nominated Henry W. Williams as " nominated Henry W. Willams as "a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, is perfectly revolutionary in its character. Its boldness is literally startling. In it the deliberate purpose of making the Supreme Court of this State a mere office for registering the decrees of a political party is distinctly enunciated. Law is no longer to be the rule of the highest judicial tribunal of the State, if Judge Williams is elected. Statutes and decisions, the great principal statutes and decisions, the great principal court of the state of th Statutes and decisions, the great princi-ples of legal science, the work of century rices of careful investigation, are all to be ignored and swept away. There is to be a new light in which judicial investigations are to be carried on, what those who nominated Mr. Williams are pleased to call the call the second or call the ed to call "the liberal spirit of the age." They demand "that the Supreme Court of the State be placed, in harmony with the political opinions" they hold...

Are the property holders of Pennsylvania ready to trust their rights to such a tribunal? Would the masses be content to have their liberties put at the mercy of a court so constituted? Never was a more infanous resolution pennsylvania.
