On a fair day, when no clouds are seen, the water is divided up clouds are seen, the water is divided up into such small particles, that it does not obstruct the sun's light, and so you see no clouds or water. A change of temperature in the atmosphere, as when a warmer and colder current of air meet, causes the small particles of water to unite in pairs, and the pairs unite, and incse quadruple drops unite, and so on until hundreds or thousands of the small, invisible particles unite in one, and even then that one may be many hundred times smaller than a pin's head. A mass of these combined drops, which are still small enough to float in air, refracts, or bends out of their course so many o the sun's rays that they stop and often darken its light. when money is to be made; but they cannot begin with the patient, saving, flint-skinning Europeans: The English, and wasteful in comparison. For instance, what Yankee would ever think of milking his sheep? But at Paris, in purchase. and even the Scoth, are improvident to New York, whence it is distributed, no doubt, over the Western continued to the same in a perfectly even temperature, a model of which forms one of the features of the Exhibition. We have no recollection that our model farmers in this country have turned their attention to milking sheep. It seems it is a very profita-ble business. We learn that Mr. Henry Ten Eyck, of Cazenovia, is about to introduce the milking process in his flock of five thousand sheep on his farm in Iowa. We wait with anxiety to learn the result.—Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbock-

IMPROVING MANURE.-Joseph Harris. in his Walks and Talks, says: "We are making a cellar under the old barn." The soil is very dry, and I spread a few cart loads of it on the top of the manure in the wettest parts of the barnyard. I was astonished at the effect. It absorbed the moisture and made a dryer surface for the cattle, far sooner and better than a good layer of straw. Of course we want some straw as well, but it is evident to me that a few cart loads of dry said. or what is far better, dry muck, would save a good deal of straw in littering yards and stalls. Sand, too, when mixed with manure, has the effect of increasing fermentation. Prof. Way's experiments proved this to be the case to an extent far greater than any one had previously thought possible. In our cold climate, where it is difficult to get manure ready for spring crops, a little sand scattered occasionally on the manure yard would increase fermentatition and prove bene-

WHEAT FOR A BARREL OF FLOUR. The question, how much wheat does it take to make a barrel of flour? is often asked, and the awnswer is of a general character, "five bushels are allowed." At the annual Fair of the Dubuque County Agricultural Society, in 1866, a premiam of $3 was offered for the hest barrel of flour made from winter wheat, and also the same from spring wheat. A firm entered one barrel of each, accompanied with the statement that sixteen bushels of winter wheat yieldsed three barrels and one hundred and three pounds of flour -- at the rate of four bushels and fifteen pounds of wheat to the. barrel. Of spring wheat fifty bushels yield cleven barrels of flour, being four bushels and thirty-two pounds to the barrel. The wheat was a fair quality and no more.

How To PURIFY TAINTED CASES.-A correspondent of the Country Gentleman tells us how he does this: "Having had some sad experience with both pork and lard, I tried the experiment of putting a small armful of dry shavings in the cask, and setting them on fire. The result was that the grease, and all other impurities absorbed by the wood of the Tuik most complete and thoroughly appointed cask was brancht to the surface and burned. It can then be washed perfectburned. It can then be washed periods by clean, and will be as good as new. The shavings should be kept moving by rolling the cask and stirring, that the fire may not burn the cask, and that the fire may search every part. Good for rancid lard-tubs and butter-firkins."

and offering sdvantages of the highest order in every Department. Who desire Success and Promotion in Business the fire may not burn the cask, and that the fire may search every part. Good for rancid lard-tubs and butter-firkins."
