THE OLD COUPLE. It stands in a sumny meadow, The house so massy and brown, With its cumbrons old stone chimney And the gray roof sloping down. The trees fold their green arms around it, The trees a century old : And the winds so chanting through them, And the sunbeams drop their gold, The cowalips spring in the marshes, And the roses bloom on the hill, And beside the brook in the pastures The herds go meding at will. The children have gone and left them, They sli in the sun alone ; And the old wife's cars are failing, And she harks to the well known tone. That won her heart in her girlhood, That has soothed her in many a care, And praises her now for the brightne Her old face used to wear, She thinks again of her bridal— How, dressed in her robe of white, She stood by her gay young lover, In the morning's rosy light.

Ou, the morning is row as ever, But the rose from her cheek is flod, And the sunshine still is golden; But it falls on a silvered head. And the girlhood dreams once vanish Come back in ber winter time, Till her iceble pulses tremble With their thrill of spring-time's prime.

And looking forth from the window, She thinks how the trees have grown, Since, clad in her bridal whiteness, She crossed the old door-stone. Though dimmed her eyes' bright annre, And dimmed her halr's young gold, The love in her girlbood plighted,

Has never grown dim or old. They sat in peace in the sunshine, Till the day was almost donc, And then, at its close, an angel Stole over the threshold stous, He folded their hands together— He touched their eyelids with bairs, And their last breath floated upward, Like the close of a solemn paim. Like a bridal pair they traversed The unseen mystical road, That leads to the beautiful city, "Whose builder and maker is God," Perhaps in that miracle country, They will give her lost youth back, And the flowers of a vanished spring-Will bloom in the spirit's track. One dranght from the living waters Shall call back his manhood's prime And eternal years shall measure The love that outlived time.

But the shades that they left behind them The wrinkles and silver hair, Made holy to us by the kisses The angel had printed there. We will hide away 'neath the willows, When the day is low in the west; Where the sunbeams cannot find them, Nor the winds disturb their rest.

And we'll suffer no tell-tale tombstone With its age and date, to rise G'er the two who are old no longer, In the Father's House in the skies,
