We hold that no one will attempt to cultivate a vegetable garden without deep cultivation and pulverization of the soil. and thoroughly enriching the ground by the use of manure in some form. Everybody at once concedes this to be necessary, and his practice is in accor-MERINOES, all styles. dance. Now, in what respect does a farm differ from a garden, except in the number of acres cultivated? A coru or wheat field is, or ought to be, but a gar n on a large scale, for the cultivation of corn and wheat; yet how few farmers there are, who bestow a tithe of the labor or manure on the cornfield, they acknowledge to be indispensable to the vegetable garden, to make it productive and profitable. Now, if it is necessary for the production of good vegetable crops, it must be patent to every one that there is the same existing necessity, in order to secure the production of good crops of corn and wheat. All are organized plants, and require the same treatment in regard to the enrichment of the ground in which they grow, as well as in their cultivation by manual labor .-The object in view by every farmer and gardener, is to convert the elements derived from the soil and earth into substances available to sustain life, and add to our enjoyments. To do this, we must furnish such materials as can be metamorposed into vegetables and grains, or disappointment is our lot. We have no right to expect that nature will convert pure sand and clay into cabbages, turnips, corn or wheat. Every intelligent man knows that something more is required in addition to sand and clay. Manure of some sort is indispensable, which is but the debris or remains of vegetables which have once lived and died, or performed the office of food to animals. All manures-even those derived from animals-are of vegetable origin. The minerals required by plants are usually found in sufficient quantity in most soils, and are rarely required to be furnished artificially. With these views, we hold it to be folly to expect a crop, so long as we furnish nothing but the seed out of which to make it. There should be no farmers in the common acceptation of the Are prepared to do all kinds term. All should be gardeners in respect to thorough manuring and cultivation, and all farms should be gardens, whether they contain one acre or fifty seres.

Dr. Parker, of Columbia, S. C., a ew haud and m bushels of corn on one acre of ground, by judicious manuring and cultivation.-What he did, can be done again under like conditions, and by any one; yet we will aver that his neighbors, with land as good by nature as his, did not make more than twenty bushels per nore, by the usual manure and method of cultivation, thus making it necessary for them to work ten acres to get a crop equal to bis from one acre. Let us hereafter follow gardening. If we can make and work a garden of fifty acres, well; if only ten acres, do no more; if only five, b sure and have it a garden as regards the fertility of the soil and cultivation.

With these views, we say cultivate small farms, enrich your lands, diversity your crops, and labor diligently yourselves, and if you do not become wealthy you can have at least an abundance about you to render life a blessing .- Southern Patantie of this extraordinary machine, the Patent Right for the States of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Brinkerhoff's Corn Sheller, Separator and Geomer, is pronounced the best machine of the kind in this country. And in proof, it may be mentioned that the Adveroey Committee and the Landers of the transport of the Universal Exposition in Paris, in 1887, have selected this Sheller as the best in America," and at the request of J. C. Berby, V. S. Agent, a machine has been shipped to Paris for exhibition. The fact may also be stated that at the great trial of Agricultural implements, at Auburn, N. Y., in July last, under the ausplees of the New York State Agricultural Swidely, the Minkerhof by one of the most competent Committees as the best Corn Sheller out. They say, "We have carefully examined and thoroughly texted this machine, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it she best Corn Sheller out. They say, "We have carefully examined and thoroughly texted this machine, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it she best form Sheller we erer sare." The report is signed by such men as John, Stanton Gould, President N. N. State Agricultural Editor N. Y. Times.

From among many complimentary newspaper notices, the following, from the New York Observer, is deemed sufficient:
"Among all the Hand Corn Shellers made in New York and Albany—and one single firm manufactures more than 10,000 annually—not one can enter the direle with the Sheller just invent to the hopper."
