THE LAST MOG OF AUTUMN.

Tis the last big of Autumn, Left squeeling alone; All his grunting companions Are batchered and gone; No pig of his kindred, No porker is nigh, To help empty the swill-trough, Or share in his sty.

I'll not leave thee, thou lone one.

I'll not leave thee, thou lone one.
To starve in the pen;
Sings thy mates are all pork now,
Die shalt thou with them.
Then thus do I offer
The blade to thy throat,
And thou shalt be pickeled
Like every dead shoat.

And may I be present
When thou art the treat; Who would not est?

When people are hungry, And beef can't be had, or coloning the appetite Perk is not bad!

SUPER-PROSPERATE OF LINE.

Bones are among the most potent fertilsers, and should be carefully saved on every farm, and in every city, and village, for the enriching of the lands of the country. Their composition chemically is as follows: In one hundred parts there are of earthy matter sixty-six, of organic matter thirty-four. The earthy part conaists of phosphate of lime, and the animal or organic is a substance called gelatine or glue. Both of these are fine manures, indeed the very richest. The bone is unavailable, however, until it is decomposed, and but few know how to effect When ground to s powder the combined action of air, and moisture, and earth will effect this object—but the grinding is a difficult matter, and involves considerable expense to prepare for it ; undoubtedly the best and cheapest form of bone fertilizer is what is termed super phosphate of lime, (sulphuric acid and raw bone). This substance is manufactured and sold widely, and, where you can re ly upon its purity, we most heartily recommend it to our readers.

We feel like giving our readers a simple recipe, and if they choose to do so they can manufacture it for themselves Take 100 pounds of bones, break them as fine as you can with a hammer, and put pounds sulphuric acid, add twice its bulk in water, pour one-third of this over the bones, and let it stand twenty-four hours stirring occasionally; add one-third more of the diluted acid, and let it stand anoth-er day and night, and on the third day add the remainder of the acid, stirring occasionally until the bones have dissolv ed, which will not usually require more than another day. Mix this with any good absorbing compost or finely pulverized manure sufficient to make it up and hold it in a solid form. The water will evaporate, and leave the mass dry and crumbly. You now have some five hundred pounds of the most powerful manurs known. The cost will be for bone say one dollar, sulphuric acid from three to four dollars, and your trouble, which we are not prepared to estimate accurate ly. Those unacquainted with chemistry may fear that the acid will destroy the properties of the bones. We assure them, however, that it simply dissolves the lime and leaves the cartilage or glue unburt, and in the same form as before, until it is stirred up. (Remove a bone from the acid after a day or two, and it will be of the same size and form, but soft and flexible, a mass of joily.—N. Western Farmer.

HORSES THAT OVERREACH.

We commend the following to horseshoers generally. It is from the Pairic Farmer, (Chicago,) and is worthy the attention of every blacksmith who attemps to shoe horses. The reason given for the method of shoeing recommended to prevent horses from overreaching, we consider to be scientifically correct. But we shall allow Mr. Kimble to be heard in his on words. He says: "I believe there are but few blacksmiths that know how to shoe horses that overreach, and some that do not seem willing to learn. Others think again that there is no better remedy than making the shoes shortter, and placing the forward one on the toe, and the hinder one on the heel of the horse. They need to understand that there is a better way, and horse owners, should make note of it. A Western correspondent gives the following rule which I think is a very good one:"-"Make the forward shoe long, and the toe-calks short and standing a little under, and set them as far back as convenient, in order to let the feet roll over as soon as possible, to get out of the way. And in setting the shoes on the hind feet, reverse the order, to keep them back to give time for the forward feet to get out of the way. Make the toe-calks high, and the half-calks low, to keep the feet back, then he will travel like other horses. This may be remedied in part in the mode of paring the hoof. This is essential in all cases, and where too many horses have been cripples. Great pains should be taken at all times in shoeing horses, and I believe not too many of our blacksmiths fully understand making the shoe and paring the hoof."

HARRISON POTATOES .-- The Oxford Press says, Henry Carter, of Fulton twp., Lancaster county, planted two and a half bushels of Harrison potatoes last spring and had therefrom a yield of one hundred and seventeen bushels. They were all large and sound. This is the most prolific yield we ever heard of.

A LEGAL CURIOSITY. - A deed has lately been executed in which the Pennsylvania Railroad company conveys to the Pennsylvania Canal company all the line of canals from Columbia to Hollidaysburg. The consideration money is $2, 650,000,00, and the revenue stamps affixed to it $750. This deed will have to be ded in the the counties of Lancaster. Dauphin, Perry, Juniata, Mifflin, Huntingdon and Blair. This will prove "fat job" for the Recorders.

QUESTION.-If a man sells a watch for fifty dollars, buys it back for forty dollars, then sells it for forty-five dollars, how much does he make by the transaction? It-looks as though he made fifteen dol-lars, but he didn't.
