My dear Madam:—You ask me in such shape as to present the best possible defence and excuse for the national expenditures. But it embraces some facts that will undoubtedly startle the country.

Mr. Wells says: The national regardly, for it is a theme of which I am never wenry; yet how shall I write of a party candidate to a lady? Once or twice have I resayed to cater to the public through the press, but to a lady have I never written on such a subject. However, in all undertakings there must be a first attempt, and so the sible defence and excuse for the national expenditures. But it embraces some facts that will undoubtedly startle the country.

The letter of Mr. Wells is drawn in such sets possible defence and excuse for the national expenditures. But it embraces some facts that will undoubtedly startle the country.

Mr. Wells says: The national received against impeachment to vote as they did. He has failed to show that a single dollar was raised or used, or attempted to be used, to influence oue of these men. There is not an honest man who has read the paper who would not pronounce it false in its statements, and false in its statements, and false in its nitentions. There is with the spirite excending June 20, 2800,000. there must be a first attempt; and so I shall try to write to you of the man; rather than of the candidate.

Horatlo Seymour was born in 1811. in the county of Onondaga, in the State of New York. His father emigrated from Connectiout, having left that State on account of the early oppression of all not Puritan Christians. Of good family on both sides, (his paternal grandfather was an officer in the Revolution, and his grandmother on that side a niece of Col. Sedvard. Arnold: and on the mother's side a daughter of Col. Fornean, of New Jersey, an arder t Whig of 1776,) he was carefully educated, and began life with unusual advantages. Nature as been particularly bountiful to him. Blessed with an excellent constitution, an unusually handsome face, a commanding stature and lofty car-riage, a charming voice, and an electrical eye; with a mind susceptible of standing the collection of $406,000,000 he highest cultivation-is it wonderul that the Ludy Augusta Murray, one of Queen Victoria's Court,) who visited this country several years and appropriations for the coming ago, pronounced him the best type of Statesman met with in America?

Although thus most captivating in private life, he is in no sense a man of forms or of fashion. In his presence the plainest persons are plac their ease, and feel at once that they are with a kind and good man, demo cratic in all his instincts, principles and purposes. Simple and unostentatious, strictly temperate, he uses neither strong nor spirituous liquors, nor tobaccos of the most refined tastes and elevated morals. A New Remnedy for Consumption.

A Physician who had Consumption for several years, with frequent, bloodings of the langs, cared himself with a medicine unknown to the profession, when his case appeared hopeless. He is the only physician who has beed it in his own person, or which as any knowledge of its virtues, and he can ascribe the degree of health he now enjoys to nothing but the use of his medicine; and nothing but utter despair and entire extinction of all hope of recovery, together with a want of confidence in all others, induced him to hazard the experiment. To those auffering with any disease of the Langs he profers a treatment he confidency believes will eradicate the disease. Modicine sent by express. Send for a circular or call on
