Gov. Seymour on the Situation.
Gov. Seymour was installed as a speaker at the meeting of the Tammany Society on Friday evening. He made an address, speaking in a pleasant and familiar manner of the best traits of the Indian character, the legend of St. Tammany, and the objects of the society which had adopted the name of the great Indian Sachem. He then spoke of the political situation, saying that the Democrats, true to their traditions and instincts, always had adopted, and always should adopt, a course as would, taking all things into consideration, best tend to promote the success of its cardinal principles.

Long Branch.
Arrival of the Gift Taker with his Troop of Horses and Dogs.
(Of the World.)
Long Branch, June 12.—The arrival of General Grant at his summer quarters was not celebrated this year by the slightest doleful. Ex-Captain Murphy, who is so constant in his attention to the President, was here on Monday, but did not even attempt to stay one day more for the sake of welcoming his old chief. The president, with quite a number of his staff, arrived by the last express train from Philadelphia on Tuesday afternoon, and on Monday evening they were excited to see the carriage which had brought the president and his staff from the depot to the cottage beyond the West End. This was rather an interesting scene. First the President and family, accompanied by...

distinguished himself before he had been in the place an hour. The expression having changed the Presidential officers were conveying all the animals up to the cottage when the stables jacks, true to their nature, suddenly bolted and positively refused to go any further. The village boys were gathering round enjoying the sports, some of them doubling their bets by laughing and holding their breath up by resting their heads on their hands while they shouted, "Oh! what a jacks!" At last, half a dozen men were wrestling with the obstinate beast, one of the arches more stable than the others made a great discovery, and announced by exclaiming, "Oh, it is no jacks at all; it is a jenny." This produced such yells of laughter as should have made even a jacks or a jenny blush. Until then the men having the best in character, and they now resolved to treat her with more gentleness. Accordingly a brawny Hibernian went up to her and said, "Well, if ye don't choose to walk ye can just as well ride," and a shouting the jenny, and she bolted and ran round the cottage, where she remained while the horses drew her up Ocean avenue, the people looking on admiringly as she passed. The jacks was taken to General Porter's house and turned out to graze. As many of the horses as could be accommodated at the President's own stables were cared for there, the rest being conveyed to the stable attached to the President's new cottage on the opposite side of the avenue. The dogs soon became accustomed to their new houses, but the big Newfoundland, when he goes up to the cliff back of the President's house and looks out upon the ocean, with its curling waves rattling up the beach, takes his fall between his legs and runs for his kennel.
