The profits of the Ring from this source alone must have amounted to vast sums annually. If all this has been discovered and proved from the' garbled figures of the Ring officials, what strange developments may be expected when honest men are put over the Pennsylvania Treasury, if ever that time occurs? No wonder that desperate means to prevent a vestigation were taken this spring by the passage of a law to keep the present Treasurer in office a year after his term had expired.

As to the individual responsibility for the startling defalcations which have oc eurred during the last six years, this is a question that cannot probably be determined precisely ustil an honest scrutiny is fice, and any person who shall be made into the books and accounts of the convicted of having sworn or affirmed nined precisely ustil an honest scrutiny is
