She was alone as o I waited upon her to a good seat, and made her as comfortable as possible. It was a few minutes before the starting hour, and she was so agreeable and so talkative, that I lingered, and we had a pleasant chat.

Afterwards, when collecting the tick-casion to recall reminiscences of the fastion. As Afterwards, when collecting the tickcasion to recall reminiscences of the late Ruby that brought tears to their Atterwards, when collecting the tick-ets, she detained me again an instant and gave me some fine peaches, which whe said came from her friend's orchard in the country; and, really, I began to think that I had not had so charming a eyes, and when the services were over, as the first coach drove up for its load, the distress of Mrs. Moriaty at the death of Mr. Ruby was so marked as to excite the liveliest sympathy. Then the second coach came up. Mrs. Mopassenger for many a day.
"Well; we arrived at the depot; and the second coach came up. Mrs. Moriaty had got down to the gate by this time, and as the door of the second coach was opened, and a call made for coach was opened, and a call made for the occupants, it seemed extremely doubtful if she could hold up another instant. She leaned against the post, and stared into the coach, and over its rich upholstering, and said the late Ru-by seemed more like a son to her than a neighbor. Whereupon the usher looked appropriately sad, and called up the third and last coach. This had yel-low cushions and nink straps, and Mrs. the third and last coach. This had yellow cushions and pink straps, and Mrs. Moriaty didn't hesitate to protest that in the death of Mr. Ruby the community had met a loss it was not possible to recover from, and that she would follow him to his last resting-place if she had to do it on her knees, and would feel grateful for the opportunity. Then the third and last coach filled and drove off to take its place in the line, and Mrs. Moriaty dried her tears, choked back the sorrow of her heart with one mighty gulp, and strode into her own house, shutting the front door without the aid of the knob. She told Clarinda that it was the scaliest affair she ever went to, and had it not been for the body there would have been no funeral

A Disease With a Thousand Symptoms

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ilments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victime of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part, also, tween the stomach and the brain, and in part, also, to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive functions necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and affects to some extent, the quality of the blood. A medicine that, like Hostetier's Bitters, not only tones the stomach but at the same time controls the liver, produces a regular habit of body, braces the nerves, purifies the fluid's and "ministers to a mind diseased," is therefore the true and only specific for chronic inducesion. Such is the operation of this famous vegetable restorative. It not only cures dyspepsia, but also all concomitants and consequences. Moreover, if is invaluable as a preventive of indiges.
