The year is on the wane!

I walked quickly round the church, heping to find some doorway open, some access to the interior. The iron gates were all closed, the doors were all closed, the doors were all closed, the doors was a false one, above which rose the fast. Paul's portals look as inaccessible and forbidding as the rocky flank. of a mountain. I was determined to find my way in, if possible; but I knew not how to set about it. Could I rope was to ascend to the uppermost knew not how to set about it. Could I rope was to ascend to the uppermonent like a decrease anything that looked peak of the roof. In that moment take a dealery or sacerdotal residence, should have made bold to kneck table. I might prolong my agony for I should have made bold to kneck thereat, and ask the occupiers for the key, But I could find nothing of the sort. Even at a bun-shop, which was still open, where I inquired as to the way of getting into the church, the people knew no more about St. Paul's than if it had been a thousand miles distant.

I might prolong my agony for a fave seconds; my muscles are involuntatingly relaxing; my grasp would fail; in another minute at furthest I must fall, to be dashed to pieces on the adamantine floor below.

A thousand confused thoughts whirled through my brain, like the smoke and sparks of an approaching conflagradistant.

I began to feel despondent about the matter, but went round the church once more till Leame to the end of the south transept—the shorter limb of the cross—and looked vacantly up at the fine semi-circular portico, with it tall columns and flight of steps. All this time, I never thought of there being anybody living inside of St. Paul's; I should as soon have expected to meet with furnished apartments in the Catacombs, or a family residence in the Pyramids. But peering curiously about, I espied, in the angle formed by the nave and transept on the western side, a window from which was not the real columns, and fight of steps. All this columns are displayed to be at war. The panic is a catalamity to all, the rich as well as the portico, shading her eyes with her bands; the children were clustering thands; the children were clustering to help one another to weather it through.

The same men will advise all their conferers to assist the employers by willingly working a time the old wages or accept a reduction of pay. This is no cept a reduction of pay. This is no time, they think, for employers and employed to be at war. The panic is a calamity to all, the rich as well as the portico, shading her eyes with her object of cheapening the portico, shading her eyes with her object of cheapening the portico, shading her eyes with her object of cheapening the portico, shading her eyes with her or of pay. This is no cept a reduction of pay. This is no time, they think, for employers and employed to be at war. The panic is a calamity to all, the rich as well as the portico, which it tall tool.

The Same men tion.

The Northwestern Farmers' Convention at Chicago the portion, the visite to debated the subject of cheapening the portion, and they content that all ought poor, and they content that all ought poor, and they content that all ought poor, and they content that all ought poor as a family residence in the portion of the same men will advise all their conferes to assist the employers by willing! where the old wa Pyramids. But peering curiously about, I espied, in the angle formed by the nave and transept on the western side, a window, from which came the faint gleam of a candle. I stood and looked between the railings, and saw that somebody was moving about within. There was a bird-cage in the window; no the sill outside, some red flower-pots. Presently, somebody came to a desk near the window and began to write: an old man, with white hair.

If I could only make him see me, per haps be would take compassion on me, and is not the twilight outside, it was nardly possible that he should see anything. I thought of flinging a pebble at the window; but it was a good distance off; I might break the glass, a window, from which came the faint general about victing a more in the window and began to write: an old man, with white hair.

And old man was bending over me anything. I thought of flinging a pebble at the window; but it was a good distance off; I might break the glass, a window, from which came the faint gleam of a candle. I stood and looked between the railing—perhaps and looked between the railing—perhaps and save stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing to make them yield to the demands of the workingmen by uniting on a strike. Thus far the firm have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing to make the workingmen by uniting on a strike. Thus far the firm have stood their ground, keeping their shop in working order by importing to make the workingmen by uniting on a strike. Thus working order by importing the country.

About 20

and the in. But it wasn't likely that he are if see me. Looking from the light of into the twilight outside, it was fardly possible that he should see anything. I thought of flinging a pebble at the window; but it was a good distance off; I might break the glass, and be taken into custody. I gave a few shrill whistles, holding my fingers in my mouth; but it was all of no use. The old man didn't turn his head.

Once again I had almost given the "I don't think so, sir; I don't think so was merciful ing of pain; perhaps some merciful ing

With all the eloquence of which I am master, I besought him to do me the goodoffice of letting me into the sacred fane. He hesitated, shook his head; at last he relented. "Very well," he said, "its against rules; but I'll let you in, if you don't mind stopping inside alone for an hour. It will be that time before I return; and I must lock the door behind me. Do you still wish to go inside?"

I thanked him warmly, and said:

I—There's death here, if I can't think of something all of a minute. And then the foreoliected that I'd heard the workmen chaps whistle three times, like this, when they wanted the rope lowered; and I piped away, and then the rope stopped, and began to come down. I shouted to you to hold on and keep your heart up; but I don't think you heard me, for when your face came in sight it was white, like death, and your tille paper, a lady sent her daughter to sight it was white, like death, and your tille paper, a lady sent her daughter to sight it was white, like death, and your the proportion of the proportion of the proportion of the proportion. Hallow-this, when they wanted the rope lowered; and I piped away, and then the proportion of the proportion. Hallow-this, when they wanted the rope lowered; and I piped away, and then the proportion of the propor

THE CENTRE REPORTER.

FRED. KURTZ, Editor and Proprietor.

Terms: $2.00 a Year, in Advance.

CENTRE HALL, CENTRE CO., PA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1873.

VOL. VI.

their operatives, but father to reduce the wages of all, or put them on short time. This plan, they think, would prevent much suffering which can in no other way be avoided. The same men will advise all their conferes to assist

The going out of October brought expense of all other industries, and deround the old festival of Hallow-Een, nouncing all special legislation. whispered.

"I don't think so, sir; I don't think Great Britain, as well as in some few Once again I had almost given the thing up, and gone home; but just them the light disappeared from the window, and all was darkness. Was the old man off to bed, I wondered, or had he gone to grope about among the crypts below! Should I see his light presently twinkling in those high windows? Did he couch in some stone gallery, or find a resting-place in the golden ball? Whilst I was thus speculating, I heard a door softly closed, a footstep on the stone staircase, and the iron gate at the bottom creaked on its hinges: I sprang forward, and met a gray-headed old man with a thin pallid face, who was just opening the iron grille.

"I don't think so, sir; I don't think you're hurt a bit. Bless you! you didn't fall more than three feet."

I stretched out my arms; they were sound and unts, both appropaiate emblems of the russet time of year. Apples are placed in tubs of water and "bobbed" for by aquatic boys. The girls melt lead through the wards of door keys to find of what initial it will take the form, and so give them a clue to the "coming man's" name. Or they place nuts on the fire and predict from the starting of them wonderful things connected with the constancy of lovers. Witches, clad in the livery of Beelzebub, are supposed to ride through the air on fiery, untaming the proposed to promise the iron grille. just opening the iron grille, then you gave a sort of moan; and says ed broomsticks. These "modern in With all the eloquence of which I am I—There's death here, if I can't think stances," the telegraph wires, must be inside?"

I thanked him warmly, and said:

Certainly, yes." Indeed, I was delighted at the idea of an hour in perfect stillness and seclusion among the mightest ty columns and arches of St. Paul. I got under the great dome, which hangs were you about, to let them draw you her complaint, when the butcher, cool were you about, to let them draw you her complaint, when the butcher, cool stillness and seclusion among the mignty columns and arches of St. Paul. I got under the great dome, which hangs like a luminous cloud above, full of hazy, uncertain shadows, a faint circle
Then I told him of my gymnastic feats.

and tell, were in a dead faint. But what shop to give him a blessing. She made her complaint, when the butcher, cool
as a cucumber, went to his ice-chest and took out part of a leg of mutton, and told her to smell of that. She did got under the great dome, which hangs like a luminous cloud above, full of hazy, uncertain shadows, a faint circle of light risming it round, arches and huge piers encompassing it. From the west, a subdued crimson glow; eastwards, the choir, dark and sombre; the windows of the apse showing as gray luminous patches, the altar glooming in the distance like some funeral catafalque. White figures gleaming here and there in shadowy recesses, marble warriors, heroes, statesmen.

'Under the dome, in the great open spaces, was a vast crowd of chairs—spaces, was a vast crowd of chairs—together in rews, looking towards the look of the great open spaces, was a vast crowd of chairs—together in rews, looking towards the little great of the complaint, when the butcher, cool as a cucumber, went to his ice-chest and took out part of a leg of mutton, and took out part of a in. The leants were form to leave their comfortable quarters, returning again and again as the work of removing the material went on.

The New York City Labor Market.

The New York World, in a review of the labor market and the progressive shrinkage of values, says:

The Typographical Union will use its influence to persuade all employers throughout the city not to discharge the wages of all, or put them on short time. This plan, they think, would prevent much suffering which can in no to struggle, then cleaned, and roasted on hot stones. When the meat is done on hot stones. When the meat is done and dry it is picked off the bones, and the squaws rub it to a fine powder between their hands, and in this shape it is kept for future use. From one of these pools a dozen Indian spearmen frequently draw out four hundred salmon in a day, and this fish forms an important part of their food. Of course they kill a great many thousand female salmon during the seasen; but so far, I believe, this murderous work has not been found to decrease the number of the fish which annually enter the river from the ocean, and go up its head declaring that no one industry can be protected by legislation, except at the

Dress Plainly

Some one has given the following mated at 1,092,000,000 bushels. In view reasons why people should dress plain-ly on Sunday. These reasons are as valid any other day in the week:—

of the decrease of 4 per cent. in area, the indicated reduction is above 23 per cent., or 250,000,000 bushels. The only It would lessen the burden of many who new find it hard to maintain their place in society.

It would lessen the force of tempta
It would lessen the force of tempta
Maine, 85; New Hampshire, 90; New

New Jersey, 99; Pennsyl-

It would lessen the lores to barter tions which often lead men to barter honesty and honor for display.

If there was less strife in dress at the people in moderate circum
Maine, 85; New Hampsmire, 99; New Jersey, 99; Pennsylvania, 93; Delaware, 76; Maryland, vania, 93; Delaware, 76; Maryland, 91; Virginia, 994 North Carolina, 95; New Hampsmire, 99; New Jersey, 99; Pennsylvania, 99; New Jersey, 99; Pennsylvan church, people in moderate circumstances would be more inclined to church would improve the worship by the remittal of many wandering

It would enable all classes of people to attend church in unfavorable wer would lessen, on the part of the rich, the temptation to vanity.

It would lesson, on the part of the poor, the temptation to be envious and nalicious.

It would save valuable time on the A fashion writer says: "Imported

The Start Book St.

Second Start St. Company of the Start Start St.

Start Start Start Start St. Company of the Start St

see the final principal class in the day of the control of the con

A lady reporter sent to an agricultural fair wrote of a lot of pigs: "They look too sweet to live a minute."

A Wisconsin man has had to have his lip amputated on account of a cancer produced by excessive smoking.

No Saratoga hotel except Congress Aail paid expenses this last season. Stewart's grand house lost $80,000.

Some of the glass blowers at Rock Island, Ill., are said to earn from $20 to $25 per day of eight hours.

The Brooklyn, N.T., Grand Jury have indicted Whitelaw Reid, of the Irribune, and Charles A. Dana, of the Sun.