

The Present Candidates and the Prospects for the next United States Senate, the New York Herald says.

On the 4th of March the terms of twenty-five Senators expire. It will be of interest, in view of the present state of parties and the prospects of the Presidential election, to see what the prospects are for the two great political organizations. The Republican party will probably elect thirty-three members of Congress. The Democrats, on the other hand, will probably elect only twelve. The following table gives the names of the candidates for each district, and the party to which they are attached.

The meetings of the Legislatures that have as yet to act on candidates are as follows: Alabama, Florida, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. Day of balloting for Senator, March 10th.
