Let Skinner be skinned and his hide be used as a covering for the clerk's desk, appropriately inscribed that all future members and officers of the house will be seen in last week's Reporter. Mr. Lynott was represented by counsel before the bar of the House, and endeavored to evade expulsion by tendering his resignation as a member. This, however, the House refused to receive and accomplished the formal expulsion.

The chair announced that he had a communication from Mr. Lynott, which being on the table, should be read. It being understood, however, that this communication embodied the resignation of Mr. Lynott, which being on the table, should be read. It being understood, however, that this communication embodied the resignation of Mr. Lynott, objections were raised to its being read.
