reach a tropical climate, their transmigration will be uninterrupted. Reasoning from these facts, we arrive at the following, which are borne out by actual experience: Any mode of de-stroying the beetle, practiced by a farmer here and there, is only lost time, as the nightly flight of the sexes in search of each other is sure to upply local fields from the others in the neighborhood, the sense of smell being probably the insect's guide to the nearest plant, and to the general ren-If extirnation of the beetle is determined upon, it must be general and simultaneous. The great difficulty of accomplishing this is insuperable. Therefore let the beetle alone. Beetles, however, produce slugs, and slugs in their turn produce beetles. Slugs de not migrate, are easily dislodged, must eat, and are therefore at our mercy in at least two ways. If they are knocked off the plants in the middle of a dry hot day, and ground into the hot soil (say by a harrow or any similar means), the erish; and if the leaves are rendered, by any external application, unfit for

An experience of six years has satisfied me that the slug state is the only vulnerable one, and either of the two modes of warfare indicated above is probably successful. They feed indisriminately on all the solangeer. They are not poisonous, cannot bite or sting a human being, need not be a terror to ecessary to attack them in a calm, cool, intalligent, business like manner, -S R. M., in Scientific Farmer.

Monday morning came, and with it Asahel Pencest, a deputy sheriff and a serving man. Farmer Linmar and his wife had spent an uneasy interval, notwithstanding the assurance of their involuntary guest; and every attempt they had made in their quiet, unobtrusive way to gain insight into the reason of the stranger's confidence had been met with existence. And now the same strange cry questioned. The first they knew of the old man's name was when he called himself Whitney; of his career, connection with the rich, arogant neighbor Pencest, or his intentions, they were asprofoundly ignorant as before they took him into

Is there any speedy remedy for hopice?

Sprinkling with ice water, according to one farmer's testimony, will quickly glear a hop vine of this pest. Cold rain always lessens their numbers, though a warm rain will increase them.

Are sunflower seeds ever fed to horses?

Yes, and are healthy feed for them in winter and spring, keeping them spirited and with sleek coats. One-half pint per day is the amount usually given, and it is claimed by some that these seeds prevent heaves and other diseases.

How about red pepper for poulty?

It has often been recommended in the club as beneficial in poultry yards.

| Section of the content of the cont As much as I detect being in debt, says a writer, I would not hesitate to recommend a young man to run in debt moderately for a farm, if he loves the occupation, and who has a wife who does not mind living on a farm; for I think with these requisites, if he be cautious and frugal for a few years, he will be better off and take more comfort on a farm than in a city.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—In expressing my thanks to you for benefits derived from the use of VEGETINE, and to benefit others, I will state:

When eight or ulse years old I was afflicted with Serofula which made its appearance in my eyes, face and head, and I was very my arbind for two years. All hinds of operations were performed on my eyes, and all to mo good rest. Finally the disease principally settled in my body, limbs and feet, and at times in an aggravated way.

my body, limbs and feet, and at times in an aggressee way.

Last summer Z was, from some cause, weak in my spine and kidneys, and it was at times very hard to retain the urine. Seeing your advertisement in the Commercial, I bought a bottle of VEGETINE, and commenced using according to directions. In two or three days I obtained great relief. After using four or five bottles I noticed it had a wonderful effect on the rugh, scall blotches on my body and legs. I still used VEGETINE, and the humorous sores one after another disappeared until they were all good, and I attribute the cure of the two diseases to VEGETINE, and nothing else.
