A Dream.

One night across my spirit fell A dark and troubled dream. I wandered, with adventurous feet. Across death's dismal stream ;

I seized a shape I knew on earth. And asked, with anxious cry, "Say, are you happy?" "Lo!" he groaned "If so, should I be I !"

No aspirations and no fears, No wants to satisfy-Ah ! well, a human soul might ask, "If so, should I be I ?"

" Breaking the Ice. "

BY GEORGE LANSING TATLOR, D. D. Twas the touch of mild weather that midwi

CENTRE HALL, CENTRE CO., PA., THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1877.

FRED. KURTZ, Editor and Proprietor.

VOLUME X.

THE CENTRE REPORTER.

TERMS: $2.00 a Year, in Advance.

NUMBER 14.

Items of Interest.

The Japanese are manufacturing wa-ter-proof boots of paper. The Rothschilds have five family mansions in Paris, valued at 100,000,000

During the year 1876 the United States yielded 420,000,000 pounds of rosin.

There are in England eleven times as many accidents from broken rails in the cold as compared with the warm quarters of the year.

A Detroit restaurateur hangayout a sign of "free chops," and when the old loafers come around he shows them an ax and a woodpite.

Two dogs fought in a Kentucky pit until both were disabled; and then their masters fought with pistols until one was mortally wounded.

A Kentucky editor remarks that ninety-nine out of a hundred people make a great mistake when they cut off a dog's tail, in throwing away the wrong end.

dismiss it from your mind at once. The tyranny of custom, it is true, compels your friend and myself to dress peculiar-tor, but to any the more. You see, we sorter swopped stocks. You know I had ten shares in

Dashboard was, I admit, a little stag-

He persisted in keeping the conversation and so she put our acquantiance on a upon the subject of lost baggage checks, square business footing. I tell you, and every bright attempt of the lady to she's a right peart girl. Did ye hear of show like this goin' on you'll let me "-

Miss X. said somewhat hastily that the noon the boom swings round in a little multiplicity of her engagements and the squall and knocks her overboard. There brief limit of her stay in New York she was an awful excitement-you've heard feared would, etc., etc. The two other about it, may be?" ladies had their handkerchiefs over their No! But I saw it all with a romancer's as follows : mouths, and were staring intently on the stage, when the Man from Solano con-tinued :

is a show goin' on that you'll attend. He had-He had— "Thar was an awful row," he went on, Hotel, to this yer address," and he pulled from his pocket a dozen well-worn letters, and taking the buff envelope from ene, handed it to her with some-thing like a how thing like a bow.

"You have met her, then?" I asked, in surprise. "Ye-es," he responded slowly. "I met her about fower months ago. She'd bin makin' a tour of Californy with some friends, and I first saw her aboard the cars this side of Rano. She lost her bag-gage checks, and I found them on the floor, gave 'em back to her, and she thanked me. I reckon now it would be about the square thing to go in over that and sorter recog-nize her." He stopped a moment and looked at us inquiringly. "My dear sir," struck in the brillinian and fascinating Dashboard, "if your hes-itation proceeds from any doubt of the propriety of your attire, I beg you to dismiss it from your mind at once. The tyranny of custom, it is true, compels your friend and myself to dress peculiar-ly, but I assure you nothing could be finer than the way that the olive green of your coat melts in the delicate yellow of your cravat, or the pearl gray of your tronsers blends with the bright blue of your waistcoat and lends additional bril-liancy to that massive oroide watch chain which you wear." To my surprise, the Man from Solano did not strike him. He looked at the ironical Dashboard with grave earnest-nes, and then said quietly: "Then I reekon you'd wouldn't mind shewin' me in thar?" Nor was conserved to the second strike him. He looked at the ironical Pashboard with grave earnest-mes, and then said quietly: Peacock stocks might come up !" I looked into his face; it was im-ple in that vicinity of the prevailing gered at this. But he recovered himself, and, bowing ironically, led the way to

But he recovered himself, and, bowing ironically, led the way to the box. I followed him and the Man from Solano.
Now, the belle in question happened to be a gentlewoman-descended from gentlewoman-descended from sense and atter Dashboard's ronical introduction, in which the Man from Solano was not sparel, she compresented the situation instantly. To Dashboard's surprise she drew a chair to be a given the man from Solano. When I did I found that he had actually become a little office on Broad street, where he there in from Solano is a surprise she drew a chair to be raised a fair business. My remember of the stock board, and in full view of the brilliant down, quiefly turned her back on Dashboard's surprise she drew a chair to be rance going back to the first night I down, quiefly turned her back on Dashboard's surprise she drew a chair to be rance of the stock board, and in full view of the brilliant dudience and the focus of a hundred lorgnettes, entered into conversation with him.
Here, for the sake of romance, I shoull like to say he became animated, and examission to buy some stocks for are wit or solid sense. But the fact is the was dull and stupid to the last degree. He persisted in keeping the conversation upon the subject of lost baggage checks, and every bright at tempt of the lady to be a signare business footing. I tell you, and every bright at tempt of the lady to the a signare busines footing. I tell you, and every bright at tempt of the lady to be a signare busines footing. I tell you.

fourth son of George Tate, Robert, had one son and several daughters. One of the latter was the wife of Capt. James is going to marry her. Well, one after-The Wheat Crop. The receipts of wheat at the principal and from henceforth will be wedded to my profession." After reflection changed Mr. Byrne's views of the subject. He followed Misa Heron to New York, urged her to forgive his injustice and return with him to San Francisco: but all his persuasions, aided by the entreaties of her brother (whom he had enlisted in his cause), did not avail to change her decis-ion. Ambition took the place of love and made her heart dumb to all his pleadings. Finding there was no homes F. Jeremiah, her executor, she left 20,000. To Adeline Sanford, of Wood's pleadings. Finding there was no hope he finally consented to a separation, though neither of them ever obtained a To Elins T. Dancer, her cousin, she be-though neither of them ever obtained a divorce. On being asked recently why she did not refute the aspersions made upon her character by publishing the true facts connected with the separation of Mr. Byrne and herself Miss Heron said: "I and to the source the second to the second t changed her course of hfe and at last married a gentleman of position and wealth, after making him acquainted with the errors of her past. Now she is aged, and her days are spent in doing good to others. If I wrote a vindication of myself the public would expect names and particulars regarding her while and at last good to others. If I wrote a vindication of myself the public would expect names

The German Reichstag being opened the emperor made a speech in which he adverted to the depressed state of com-Mr. Jeremiah, though he has known the rece and industry, and also to the de-ciency in the budget. It proposed that inside of their house more than four or what they bring to us from the atmosand every bright attempt of the lady to divert him failed signally. At last, to everybody's relief, he arose, and leaning over her chair, said: "I calklate to stop over here some time, miss, and you and me bein's orter strangers here, may be when there's nerve to stop over here some time, miss, and you and me bein's over show like this goin' on you'll let me"—

ern question, still unsolved, threaten Germany in a less degree than any other country.

 Mine X. mit somewhat hastily that the mine to boom wings round in a litted

 Mine X. mit somewhat hastily that the
 mine to boom wings round in a litted

 mith of her sky in
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the
 New York all
 mon the boom wings round in a litted

 mark wing somewhat hastily that the of the wings somewhat hastily that the somewhat hastily that hastily that the somewhat hastily that hastin that hastily that hastily that hasting the ba an inhabited corner of that vast empire where the Newloundland cod is not to afterward be planted in barley, and loses be for mules from the seacoast into the most the corn, as it is a principle in agriculture distant provinces of the interior. The that the strength of the land is only lost mines from the seacoast into the most distant provinces of the interior. The negroes of the West Indies welcome it as a grateful addition to their vegetable dict. To all parts of the Mediterranea it finds its way, Italians, Greeks and all over the sunny peninsula the "bucalo" having such an amount of stable manure, is a standing dish. In the warmer which in itself, if utilized, would pay for the new foundland cod is not to afterward be planted in barley, and loses himself once and proved that he was und, being carried on the backs of none of its strength by the planting of good at a trade there is no denying. Sam owned a dog that was a constan of the sea harvest. The Spaniards and Portuguese are our best customers, and all over the sumy peninsula the "bucalo" buck of the sea harvest. The Spaniards and Portuguese are our best customers, and all over the sumy peninsula the "bucalo" buck of the sea harvest. The spaniards and portuguese are our best customers, and all over the sumy peninsula the "bucalo" buck of the sea harvest. The spaniards and portuguese are our best customers, and all over the sumy peninsula the "bucalo" buck of the sea harvest of the spaniards and portuguese are our best customers, and all over the sumy peninsula the "bucalo" buck of the spaniards and portuguese are our best customers and portuguese are our best customers. The spaniards are buck of the spani may be elected, always excepting the Prince of Wales, who is a constituent The Indian relics discovered by the than in cold weather. But there are many practical obstacles in the way of pruning fruit trees at that time of the They consist of tablets of dark colored phere. During a thunder storm nitric acid is produced in considerable quanti-ties; and dissolved in the rain drops to a high degree of attenuation, its effects upon soils are highly salutary, as the nitrogen permeates the entire soil.

Oxen in Harness.

apple trees, it is far better to do it then than not at all. Apple trees, whether young or old, should have their heads ceived the highest honor which it is in the power of the queen to confer on a foreign prince—an honor, too, which is sometimes coveted in vain by reigning sometimes coveted in vain by reigning sovereigns. Guizot mertions how glad Louis Philippe was to receive the Garter, which he only did upon his visit to Eng-land in 1844, when he had already been fourteen years upon the throne. He is said to have expressed the feeling that now at length he could no longer be called a many king of the harriedes but was mere king of the barricades, but was mere king of the barricales, but was formally received into the brotherhood of monarchs upon equal terms. Napoleon III, was equally pleased when in 1855— less than four years after the coup d ctat—he was invested with the blue ribbon by her majesty in person. On the other hand, we find Lord Palmerston (in Lord Dalling's Life) writing to his brother, Sir William Temple, and telling him that "Bernadotte has been flying a kite for and particulars regardless of the public would expect names and particulars regardless of the fabre, here and built of the public of the public part of the original institution. Special statutes are passed for the admission of foreign sovereigns or princes as extra knights.

Wants His Interest Also.

The Allentown (Penn.) Bulletin says : Twenty years ago a man living in this city lost a wallet containing $60, and a lady living in Catasauqua had the for-tune to find the money, but lacked the honesty to return it to the owner, though

