Break of Day.

Cruel white waves in sad under-tone Break at my feet with desolate moan. Far in the distance as eve can reach, Only a long strip of sandy beach, Backward and forward, to left, to right, Blacker the darkness upon the night.

Rugged and silent the mountains loom, Pitiless shadow of coming doom! Is there no herald of dawning day Over the ocean so cold and gray? Fast throbs my heart with its bitterest pain,

Turn from the desolate moaning sea It hath no part in thy life or thee. Dreary the path where no flowers bloom by rugged shore through the mountains' glo Thine is the burden : with weary feet. Brave, not despairing, thy Fate go meet.

From pain no longer a coward shrink ; Though the cup is bitter, thy lips must drink. Earthward no more turn thy tearful gaze : Who works in earnest, in earnest prays The rough dark road thou wouldst fain forget? Upward and onward! The end is not yet.

Enkindles the alter where God is Priest.

Rosy lights creep down the mountain-side Finshing the slow heaving, swelling tide. Rainbow of promise high overhead Tells the Day coming with silent thread. Slowly the curtain of night is furled; Slowly the light of God blesses the world.

Through the shimmering gold of breaking day A white-winged sail is speeding its way. Ah, blessed Day, full of hope new-born That brings my love in its happy dawn Shine out in the sky! O glorious sun The end is not yet. Life has just begun. -Ellis Gray in Harper's Magazine for Jan

The enthusiasm with which this idea was received was wonderful. Children began to watch for letters that came to their houses with almost as much impatience as any lover watches for dainty, perfumed notes. Men and women on receiving letters would proceed to cut off the stamp before reading the epistle. From hundreds the number became thousands and ten thousands. Triple Tragedy in Arizona.

J. E. Stevens, in a letter from Hackberry, Arizona, says: "I came over here and found the camp in a fever of excitement over a terrible tragedy that had recently been enacted. Bob White, whom you remember, had some words with a stranger named Frank McNiel, about a trivial matter, which resulted in A Man Consumed in a Blast Furnace. About eight o'clock the hopper of No. 3 furnace was charged with ironstone, etc., by a man hamed James Higgins and other workmen, and in order to allow the material to fall into

The first experiment with the electric light in Berlin, was made recently, in the new synagogue in Oranienburg street, before a large crowd of people. In the court-yard of the building a sta-tionary apparatus furnished the light, which was conducted over the roof into two of the five round windows, whence two of the five round windows, whence the light streamed down on the syna-gogue below. The effect was astonish-ing. The light was so brilliant that it illuminated the gallery and the remotest corners of the edifice. The splendor of the light was vivid, but not offensive to the sight. In comparison with gas, the result is as follows: Gas, per hour, $15; the electric light, $1 for the same time. The apparatus costs several thousand The apparatus costs several thousand marks. The synagogue was also lit up outside by the electric light, bringing it out as bright as day, and producing a most magical effect. Gas burned along side of the electric light looked pale, and was, as it were, thrown into the shadow
