

halls for concerts in New York city is the justly celebrated Stock Hall, No. 11 E. 14th St.

cellent qualities of the building are so evident that they surpass those of any similar structure in the city. The grand hall are the warerooms of the renowned pianos, the manufacture of which was a quarter of a century ago by Mr. Oesterlin. These instruments are valued for their durability, and have taken the first prizes at the Vienna exhibition in 1873, and at Philadelphia in 1876. The building is constantly times over interesting purchasers every prudent as to prices and terms.

The Best and Most Economical House in the City—This cheap and substantial baking powder's "wide birth," and because experience has taught them that the best is the cheapest, they have decided, since, as Dooley's Yeast Powder, never fails to produce light, wholesome nutritious bread, and is the best and most economical of all kinds, is by far the best and most economical.
