Residents in their immediate neighborhood complain of the stench at night, and it is a notable fact that the fever in the vicinity is of the most malignant type. Visible signs of the epidemic are now on the streets, and it seems as if nearly every woman in the city is in mourning. To-day's fever reports show fifty-one deaths and 122 new cases, with fifty-five cases reported of older origin. Total deaths, to date, 2, 703; total cases, 8, 462." In Memphis it was growing warm again and In Memphis it was growing warm again and the fever continued to spread. Scarcely an hour passed but that some well-known citizen was reported taken down. At Vicksburg the fever was again on the increase, owing to the refugees returning to the city from the sur-rounding country, where the disease was general.
