In the meantine, we owe it to the people who have been so liberal in their support of our enterprize between Pennsylvania Furnace and Tyrone that our work there should be utilized. An expenditure of nearly three hundred thousand dollars, with which sixteen miles of road have been graded and bridged ready for the people with the peop there should be utilized. An expenditure of nearly three hundred thousand dollars, with which sixteen miles of road have been gracied and bridged ready for the track, is an investment too valuable for abandeament. If we cannot command means to complete that part of our work, a liberal and just policy would dictate that we, by and with the consent of our Lessee offer it to local or other interests for completion and use, we reserving the right to resume possession on such conditions as may be agreed upon in the transfer, whenever it shall become necessary to form part of our through route. Such arrangement would serve important local interests, and preserve to ourselves a prospective value in a work, without early care, must fall into complete decay.
