White-robed sle comes, my love, my own, Yet purer than the robe she wears; White flowers she holds, the fairest known Yet sweeter han the flowers she bears So white, so sweet, yet I could seek And find, be eath that white veil hid, Love's hue upon that gentle cheek,

Love's light beneath that long-fringed lid.

Clash out, bave bells! Ring far and wide, And laugh the piping birds to soom. Fair kinsmen, tiss the bonny bride, wandersfar with me this morn: And if her eye are filled with tears, I grudge then not their tender rain.

My love can case the misty fears And kiss the unshine back again.

Te Sorrow. Come not when the sun is here And the mook-bird, piping clea

Warbles sweetest interludes, And from wooded solitudes

Songless hedge and leafless tree

Sorrow! are reserved for thee; Therefore, call me not away—

Calls the flowers to appear.

Let me joy in life to-day!

Soon, alas ! 'twill ended be.

Bringing sadness in his train— On a wild and windy day,

Taps upon the window-pane.

'Neath the low, red sunset skies,

When the ghostly mists uprise,

Frozen marsh and pool among-

When regret o'erfills mine eyes,

-Julie K. Wetherill, in Scribner

I will go with thee along.
