

The Dumb Creatures.

The 65,000 dogs of St. Petersburg bring to the city treasury $130,000 per year, $2 being the tax upon each dog.

A dog washed from a passing school recently swam across a distance of nearly four miles, near Watch Hill, R. I.

A setter dog in Lee county, Ala., attacked a large hawk in a barnyard and whipped it in a fair fight.

A Bath (Mo.), cat after several unsuccessful attempts at jumping, finally put her front paws on the sidewalk before a post, behind which she hid, and soon had material enough for supper.

An aged dog committed suicide at Manchester, N. H., by walking into the water and staying down till the tide came in, when he was rescued by a young man standing all his master's efforts to get him out.

Tupper, a farmer who lives about Columbus, Ga., has given us the following story: He was going out to his corn field the other morning, he says, when he saw a large snake crawling over a fence, carrying a full-sized cat of sorts in its mouth, while it was being held by its tail wrapped around another large snake which he was dragging behind him.

Friday a gentleman living in Leeton, Ga., had his eyes scratched out of his nose and devoured by a mule. A witness of this remarkable spectacle says that the mule, which was a large one, was driven by the gentleman, and waited deliberately for his approach, taking off his glasses and giving them to him as if they had been a delicious morsel of food.

At New Philadelphia, Ohio, a hage dog in attempting to scale a high fence into a yard, missed his footing and landed at the bottom of the well, sixty feet deep. The family thought he was "righting himself" at the bottom, but could not account for it. About noon the first sign upon looking into the well discovered a point of gleaming eyes staring at her from the bottom. Help was obtained and the dog drawn up. He was found to be a large pointer, and kept alive by swimming all the time.

A cockatoo who has seen half a century of the world, and who has been by his master's three years ago in the zoological gardens, Philadelphia. Upon his return from Europe he was taken to the zoo, and went to the gardens, and standing where the bird could be seen, called by name. The keeper, who had recognized his voice, and flew about the cage in a state of intense excitement.

When the former master was in the zoo, he was accompanied by a young boy, who was very much interested in the bird. The boy was very fond of the bird, and he was very much interested in the bird.

At midnight on the second day of May, 1878, fire was discovered on the roof of the building, and the alarm was sounded for station 339.

Forman Meagher, of Hook and Ladder company, was the first to arrive at the scene of the burning building in less than two minutes from the time the alarm was sounded.
